Farmers Vote To Join With Strike Plan

Majority of 600 at Mass
Meeting Favor Holiday
To Boost Prices

YET AGAIN SEPT. 26

of Dairyman Discussed
By W. M. Singler
And Others

Outagamie-co farmers favor a farm strike in an effort to increase the prices of their products to a point where they can at least realize the cost of production, and they want to strike immediately.

At least, a goodly portion of approximately 600 farmers who attended a mass meeting at Pierce park last night, to hear the aims and purposes of the National Farmer's Holiday association discussed, so indicated. The farmers last night also perfected their organization, naming Otto Rohm as chairman of the meeting, and Harry Jack as secretary. W. M. Singler, president of the Wisconsin Cooperative Milk Pool, who was named county director for the holiday association at a meeting at Marshfield more than a week ago, was given a vote of approval by the audience.

Mr. Singler and several farmers occupied the speaking platform. All of the ills of the farmers—as seen from the viewpoint of the various speakers—were discussed. Some speakers said that the holiday or strike movement would end troubles, while others declared the trouble was not a cure. Farmers were advised that organization and co-operation were the methods by which they should seek relief.

In this point all of the speakers were in harmony, but they did not agree on which organization was the best. When they were asked if they favored striking as soon as 70 per cent of the farmers of the state had joined the organization, a large portion of the audience rose in approval and there was applause. There also were shouts of "Let's strike now."

"Why wait?"

The audience also cheered when Singler and Dr. W. C. Sullivan, Kaukauna, attacked the state department of agriculture and markets. Singler charged the department with inefficiency and with failing to keep the interest of the farmers at heart. He charged the department with interfering with organization of the milk pool and he read an editorial from the Sheboygan Press in which the department was attacked for its efforts to keep farmers from attending the mass meeting at Marshfield recently when organization of the holiday association was discussed.

Singler said the department sent "canned editorials" to the newspapers and that these contained propaganda designed to keep farmers from the meeting. He said they scoffed at the milk pool plan to get "cost of production plus a fair profit for the milk producers."

Singler's talk was interspersed with pleadings to the farmer to organize and do something for themselves. He pointed out that political promises meant nothing in years past, as has been proven by the records of the politicians, and he pointed out the farmers could not look to the politicians for help now.

Heavy Debt
Less than 80 years ago, Singler said, there wasn't a single dollar of indebtedness against Outagamie-co farms, while today there is an average of $77 per acre. He pointed out that figures secured by the officials of the holiday association showed the average Wisconsin farmer had a total operating cost of $3,222.99, while the average income was but $2,684.52—an average loss of $538.47 per year. He said this was the reason farmers are facing bankruptcy and ruin today.

A strike would serve to increase prices immediately, Singler claimed. He pointed out that surplus products would be distributed free to the needy. He said city residents were paying enough for these products, but that the middleman was reaping the benefit. He read a long list of figures to show how much

Faces Revolt

Santiago, Chile—(P)—The army air force rose in revolt today against the administration of Provisional President Carlos Dávila, threatening to bomb the presidential palace or attack it with troops if he refused to resign.

The revolt was led by Col. Arturo Merino Benítez, frequently a storm center of the air force, and its nucleus was at El Bosque airport on the outskirts of Santiago.

The movement started a few hours after the entire cabinet resigned and President Dávila succeeded in reshuffling the ministries and forming a new government.

Plans Announced For Harbor and River Projects

War Department Reveals
Program Under Garner-
Wagner Relief Act

Washington—(P)—A huge public works program calling for an early outlay of $56,741,260 for river and harbor improvement, flood control and army housing projects as provided under the Garner-Wagner relief act was announced today at the war department.

This is part of the $200,000,000 of the $320,000,000 fund authorized in the relief act which President Hoover recently announced was available now for public works construction to relieve unemployment.

Allotments, announced by Acting Secretary Payne, included $26,077,260 for rivers and harbors, $15,500,000 for flood control and $15,164,000 for housing at various army posts.

These allotments will expedite work on many important projects, and are expected to provide employment for many thousands of men. The Garner-Wagner act provided a total of $30,000,000 for river and harbor projects and the remainder of this sum is to be allotted later.

Under the flood control projects, the Memphis district received $6,500, the largest, while New Orleans was second with $3,500,000.

Among the big allotments for river and harbor improvement, the Missouri river between Sioux City, Iowa, and its mouth received a total of $6,700,000 for improvement of the channel.

Mississippi Projects
The Mississippi, between the Ohio and Illinois rivers, was given $2,000,000 and $3,200,000 was set aside for improving its channel from the mouth of the Illinois to Minneapolis.

Lock and dam construction on the Allegheny in Pennsylvania was allotted $4,000,000. The $1,500,000 allotment for the Tennessee river was to begin work on dam number 3 of the Muscle Shoals project.

The $15,164,000 army housing program as provided in the relief bill is to be carried out without change except it may be subject to a 10 per cent reduction under the economy act.

A part of the $3,200,000 to be expended on the upper Mississippi will be used for construction of new locks at Alma and Fountain City, Wis., and Canton, Mo., approximately $1,000,000 will be used for each.

Only the Kenosha river work will be continued on dams now under construction at Marnet, and London, W. Va., with $1,000,000 available for each.

The war department estimated that approximately 35,000 men would be given employment as a result of the funds made available today. Of these it estimated 10,000 would be used in flood control work, and on river and harbor projects approximately 15,000.

The force required to carry out the program for army buildings was estimated at 10,000 men. Much of the flood control and river and harbor work is to begin immediately.

Iowa and South Dakota farmers continued attempts to enforce an embargo on the city but Nebraska farmers had not resumed picketing activities today. South Dakota pickets, about 75 strong, took up positions on Highway 50 late last night and began stopping trucks going in and coming out of the city.

Woodbury-co farmers plan to meet tonight to decide on future activities in connection with the strike.

Sioux City, Iowa—(P)—Activities of striking farmers, who have picketed highways leading into the city for over a month in an attempt to raise farm produce prices, approached a stalemate today.

19 Million of Total to Go to University of Rochester

Rochester, N. Y.—(P)—An estate of $25,561,641, or approximately $5,000,000 more than the estimates at the time of his death, was left by George Eastman, the Kodak magnate, according to the transfer tax affidavit filed here today. Of the total estate, $8,319,533 was in cash. Eastman committed suicide by shooting himself at his home here last March 14. He was 77.

Because a large part of the estate is tax exempt by reason of being bequeathed to educational and philanthropic institutions, the state collects a tax of only $14,212 on the net taxable estate of $585,321.

A gross value of $24,403,748 in personal property and $1,157,892 in real estate is shown. Debts, including approximately $3,000,000 in unpaid gifts to European dental dispensaries founded by Mr. Eastman, total $3,674,574; funeral and administration expenses already paid $11,164, estimated expenses of administration $500,000, making total deductions of $4,185,738 and providing a net estate for distribution of $21,375,903.

The value of exempt bequests is $20,790,581. The University of Rochester is the residuary legatee and benefits from Mr. Eastman's will in the sum of $19,287,143. The second largest beneficiary is the Rochester Dental dispensary, which receives $1,028,438.

A surprising disclosure was the fact that Eastman carried only $16,951 in life insurance, and of which was payable to his niece, Mrs. Ellen Andrus Dryden of Evanston, Ill. Mrs. Dryden also was bequeathed $206,015, including $100,000 in cash, $100,000 in New York city bonds now valued at $91,500 and personal items including silverware, jewelry and household effects.

Mrs. Alice K. Hutchinson, for years secretary to the philanthropist, was left $100,573, represented by $100,000 bonds of Jersey City, N. J., with accrued interest. Eastman also left to Mrs. Hutchinson a trust fund of $100,000 out of which she was instructed to pay $20,000 to the organization promoting the 13 month calendar, and finance the care of a second cousin of Eastman's now living in Los Angeles and the education of two sons of another second cousin.

The palatial Eastman home was valued at $500,392. It was bequeathed to the University of Rochester. Paintings in the home were valued at $1,196,307.

Lone Bandit Robs
Sun Prairie Bank

Poorly Dressed Gunman Gets More Than
$1,000 in Holdup

Star Prairie, Wis.—(P)—A poorly dressed young gunman robbed the Star Prairie State bank of between $1,000 and $1,500 today.

Star Prairie is in St. Croix-co, 40 miles northeast of the Twin Cities. The raider went to the window of Donald Hexan, bookkeeper. Pulling an income tax blank from his pocket, he said he "would like to get some help on how to fill this out."

In the bank also were Frank Bixby, cashier, and Miss Ruth Larson, assistant cashier.

Hexan sent the man to Bixby. After conversing a few seconds, he took a pistol from his pocket and told him to "stick 'em up."

Then the gunman repeated his command and the three victims, hands in the air, were marched into the vault.

Hand over the money and keep quiet, the robber demanded as all entered the vault. Bixby took the money from the safe and handed it to him.

Lie Detector Not Sure to Convict Guilty Criminal

Chicago—(P)—The inventor of the lie detector came out today with what he says is the truth about his invention, which has been widely used to tell whether persons are fibbing.

The machine, invented by Dr. John A. Larson, assistant state criminologist, won't tell a lie, Larson said, but he would not send a man to jail solely on its evidence, because human interpretation of its records may be faulty. There is a constant percentage of such error, ranging from 5 to 25 per cent, he said.

His revelation was made in a book, "Lying and Its Detection," released by the University of Chicago press.

Dr. Larson, once known as the "only Ph. D. cop in the world" constructed the first lie detector when he was serving as a policeman in Berkeley, Calif. It consists of a cuff which is placed around the upper arm of the subject to register blood pressure and a tube which is placed around the chest to record respirations. These register on a cylinder of paper which is operated by a synchronized motor.

In eleven years of service, Dr. Larson said, only seven persons have lied without being detected at the time they were subjected to the detector's tests.

Washington—(P)—Unless there is an unprecedentedly sharp drop in temperature, the weather man believes another moderate winter is in store.

That is the normal expectancy, Joseph M. Kincer, chief of the agricultural meteorology division of the weather bureau, said today, as a result of the upward swing in the thermometer beginning in 1926.

Records show that the weather moves in currents of a few cold days and then a few warm years, Kincer said. In the past, a change from one cycle to another has come gradually and while not forecasting definitely a mild winter, he said that indications pointed that way since there is no evidence yet that a change to subnormal temperatures has begun.

The present upward trend in temperature really began after the hard winter of 1918. Since then ab-

Democrats in Maine Defeat Foes at Polls

Elect Governor and Two
Congressmen in Bitterly
Contested Battle

BIG VOTE IS POLLED

Prohibition Law Outstanding Issue Before
Voters of State

Washington—(P)—White House officials said today there would be "no comment" on the election returns from Maine.

An hour before the president's customary semi-weekly cabinet meeting began, Secretary Mills and Postmaster General Brown, both of whom often advise Mr. Hoover on political matters, entered a conference with the chief executive.

Democratic congressional leaders said the Maine returns forecast victory for their national ticket in November.

Portland, Me.—(P)—Maine Democrats elected a governor yesterday for the first time in 18 years. They also elected two of the state's delegation of three in the house of representatives.

Louis J. Brann, Democratic candidate for governor, had a lead of 1,687 over Eubleigh Martin, Republican, as but 18 of the state's 632 precincts were unreported.

Martin declined to comment "until complete returns were tabulated" and other leaders of the party also refused to concede anything.

Brann, in a brief statement, saw in the large vote—it was the greatest in the history of his party—a renewed interest in government and public affairs.

Congressman Carroll L. Beedy, lone Republican to win, led Joseph E. Connolly by 2,077 votes when the district tabulation was completed.

The 18 districts missing in the Second and Third Congressional districts where the Democrats were ahead were so small that they could not alter the final outcome of the election.

E. Carl Moran, Jr., Democrat, had an advantage of 2,420 over John E. Nelson with four of the 213 precincts in the Second missing, and John G. Utterback held a lead of 1,147 over former Gov. Ralph O. Brewster.

But one issue came out of the weeks of intense campaigning preceding the election—prohibition.

All the Democratic candidates were for out-and-out repeal.

The Republican congressional aspirants maintained that the voters had not yet expressed themselves as favoring any change in the three quarters century prohibition regime in the state.

Martin did not commit himself although he was understood to favor the party's state platform which lauded prohibition and called for strict law enforcement.

Beedy has always been an ardent supporter of prohibition and defeated a "repeal" in the party primary in June. Connolly, the only Democrat to lose a major place, stressed the prohibition situation throughout his campaign.

FARLEY JUBILANT
New York—(P)—Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley met late returns from the Maine election today with a statement in which he predicted "as Maine goes so goes the ball game."

"It really seems to me," he said in the statement, issued at Democratic national headquarters, "that our Republican friends ought to make the statement in regard to the result of the Maine elections. I certainly am most anxious to hear their explanation for the election of a Democratic governor and two Democratic congressmen in 'rock-ribbed Republican Maine.'"

"I repeat what I have said before. The Democrats do not concede a single state."

Ten More Bodies Taken
From River; Total Is 56

New York—(P)—Ten bodies came to the surface of the East river today in the vicinity where the labor ferry Observation sank last Friday morning after her boiler exploded. These brought the total of known dead in the disaster to 56. Of the original list of those believed to have been on the boat and reported missing, nine remained unaccounted for today. Twenty-eight injured were still in hospitals.

Flying Hutchinsons Saved By British Ship; Three in New York to Rome Flight

Doctor, Pilot and Girl
Take Off From
Bennett Field

WEATHER IS IDEAL

Woodchuck Is Taken
Along as "Carbon Monoxide Detector"

London—(P)—The master of the S. S. Dartford reported that he had sighted the airplane "The American Nurse" which took off from New York this morning on a non-stop flight to Rome, more than 400 miles east of Boston, flying over the Atlantic in clear weather.

New York—(P)—A doctor, a veteran pilot, a girl parachute jumper and a woodchuck called "Tail Wind" hopped off at 6:16 a. m. (eastern standard time) today on an announced attempt to fly to Rome.

Before taking off from Floyd Bennett field on the 4,200 mile jaunt, Dr. Leon M. Pisculli of Yonkers, N. Y., commander of the expedition, said the plane would head out over the Atlantic at Cape Cod and fly the "southern" route.

He said Miss Edna Newcomer, 28-year-old brunette from Williamsport, Pa., would step out of the plane with a parachute over Florence, Italy, as a tribute to Florence Nightingale, the Joan of Arc of the nursing profession. Miss Newcomer studied nursing before she turned to parachute jumping.

William Ulrich of Mineola, N. Y., piloted the plane, named "The American Nurse," but Miss Newcomer expected to relieve him occasionally. Dr. Pisculli said he would make medical observations of the effect of a transatlantic flight on the plane's occupants, including "Tail Wind," the doctor's pet.

Weather Called Ideal
Weather for the flight was pronounced ideal. The two men wore khaki uniforms while Miss Newcomer was all in white, except for a sparkling blue jacket.

"Tail Wind" found by Dr. Pisculli on a Westchester roadway suffering from a broken leg and nursed back to health, is not going just for the ride. He is a carbon monoxide detector. Dr. Pisculli said he has a theory that some of the planes lost on transatlantic flights fell because of the cabins filled with deadly gas. If "Tail Wind" shows signs of unnatural sleepiness the doctor will figure danger is near.

Besides 350 gallons of gasoline, the plane carried a hypodermic needle, a stethoscope, a shaving outfit, a signaling pistol, flare bombs, field glasses, smelling salts, tea tablets, honey to sweeten the tea, three chickens, tomatoes, fruit, two gallons of water, lamb's wool and almond oil to stuff the ears and an aviation biscuit invented by the doctor.

Wausau Cashier Faces
Embezzlement Trial

Wausau—(P)—Anton Grade, cashier of the Hatley State bank, in Memorial hospital here since he slashed his neck and wrist Aug. 31, was arrested late yesterday on a warrant charging he embezzled about $20,000 of the bank's funds.

The Hatley bank was closed Aug. 31 by Roy Luther, state bank examiner, and Grade attempted suicide the next day.

The warrant charges that funds of the bank were withdrawn from Jan. 1, 1926, to Aug. 20, 1932. Grade was too weak to appear in court and authorities stationed a guard over him.

Chinese Bandits Kill 9
Japs in Raid on Train

Harbin, Manchuria—(P)—Another outrage by bandits operating along the Chinese Eastern railway occurred last night at almost the same spot where the Harbin-Changchun was wrecked and plundered. Nine Japanese soldiers were killed, twelve were seriously injured, a number of passengers were kidnapped, and the countryside reduced to a state of panic.

The fate of a number of Europeans on this train could not be determined immediately.

Expect Early Arrest in Badger Hijack Slaying

Baraboo, Wis.—(P)—Sauk-co authorities were confident today they would have under arrest within 48 hours the man who killed William Paske, 30-year-old farmer who turned bootlegger. Paske was shot to death yesterday by a man who jumped on the running board of his car.

A complete story of the events leading up to the execution was told officers last night by Paul Zimmerman, 24, an episode of Paske in a hi-jacking episode Sunday night, in retaliation for which Paske was slain. Zimmerman and another companion of Paske were held in the county jail today as material witnesses.

Zimmerman told authorities that Paske became connected with a liquor ring at Baraboo only a few months ago. Until that time he was struggling to make a living on his farm, but the lure of big money prompted him to become a bootlegger.

The Baraboo ring's operations have covered several states, officers said, and conferences here at the homes of the ring's "big shots" always brought cars from Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Minnesota. Three thousand gallons of alcohol stored in a warehouse recently were confiscated by federal agents.

Paske was assigned a liquor running job, officers learned. He complained of being hijacked about three months ago, but officers now believe he merely converted the load to his own use. At any rate, the investigators said, he engineered the Sunday night hijacking of a warehouse, in company with Zimmerman and another man, in

Girl Routs Young Burglar After He Threatens Her Life

Omaha—(P)—Virginia Meidlinger awoke from a sound sleep to find a burglar standing beside her bed and peering down at her.

"Your money," demanded the intruder in the best underworld accent. Virginia, frightened and still half asleep, was silent.

"I guess you'll have to die," muttered the robber. "Are you ready?"

"No, are you?" queried Virginia. "And besides, you're just a punk kid," she threw at him as she leaped from bed and grappled with him, at the same time screaming for her father to come to her aid.

The would-be bad man, thoroughly scared, slapped the girl, broke away and plunged out a window.

Virginia said the intruder was a youth of about 17. She is 14.

Lead Set at 3,333

Canvass Board Recommends
Texas Woman
Be Declared Governor

Lubbock, Texas—(P)—An official canvass by the executive committee of the Texas Democratic party shows Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson holds a majority of 3,333 votes over Gov. Ross S. Sterling for the gubernatorial nomination.

This canvass of the Aug. 27 runoff primary was certified to the state convention today with a recommendation Mrs. Ferguson declared the nominee. Governor Sterling has given notice he will contest the nomination in the courts, claiming several thousand persons voting for Mrs. Ferguson were not entitled to exemptions from the requirement. He did not appear before the executive committee last night but indicated he would challenge the nomination on the convention floor.

The tabulation showed: Mrs. Ferguson, 476,074; Governor Sterling, 472,741.

The committee in accepting the returns as certified to it by county chairman complied with a ruling by the state supreme court that it and the convention lacked authority to go behind the returns. It passed a resolution, however, asking the state legislature to strengthen the election laws and advise an investigation of asserted irregularities at the last primary.

Lebrun Denies Mercy To Doumer's Assassin

Paris—(P)—President Albert Lebrun rejected the final appeal for the life of Dr. Paul Gorguloff, slayer of former president Paul Doumer, today after the Russian was ordered guillotined tomorrow.

Even before formal announcement of the execution, passes were being issued by the prefecture of police for the occasion. Father Gillet, a priest of the Greek Orthodox church, arrived to administer last rites to Gorguloff. The execution probably will take place at dawn.

The prisoner, held in Sainte Prison, confessed the slaying but appeals had been made on grounds he was insane. President Doumer was shot fatally at a public gathering here last May.

Needah, Wis.—(P)—George Masulis, found dead in his yard here yesterday, killed himself after setting fire to his gasoline soaked clothes, in the opinion of Juneau-co authorities. They previously believed he had been killed and an attempt made to burn his body. Relatives expressed the opinion that Masulis probably shot himself and a scheduled inquest was called off.

Von Papen Still In Saddle Despite Reichstag Defeat

Chancellor and Cabinet
Awaiting Action by
Supreme Court

Berlin—(P)—The breach between the Von Papen government and the hostile Reichstag was widened today when the chancellor and Baron Von Geyl, minister of the interior, declined to answer a summons before the Reichstag committee for safeguarding the rights of the national minorities.

This committee functions even after the Reichstag is dissolved. The opposition contends the committee has jurisdiction over the dispute which arose yesterday when the chancellor promulgated a decree of dissolution after the Reichstag had passed a vote of non-confidence by an overwhelming majority.

Berlin—(P)—Chancellor Franz von Papen and the German Junker cabinet sat tight today, backed by the army and the police, though the Reichstag overwhelmingly voted no confidence in them yesterday while the chancellor was in the act of dissolving the parliament.

Announcing that Democracy had broken down in Germany, the chancellor gave every indication that he intended to continue to hold the reins under the slogan: "With Von Hindenburg for Germany."

In the meantime plans proceeded for taking to the supreme court the issue of the legality of the chancellor's decree of dissolution, which the opposition contended was presented out of order while a vote was being taken.

"The government of the reich," the chancellor said, "is of the opinion that the system of formal democracy has broken down and is incapable of resurrection." He earnestly begged private employers to "read the signs of the times aright," declaring if they did not they would find themselves "trapped and swallowed" by those whose aim was state socialism.

In a radio address to the people last night the chancellor said the French reply to Germany's request for equality in armaments "is not calculated to bring nearer the solution of this serious problem." The answer was one which he was prevented from delivering in the Reichstag yesterday by the developments there. The French reply was delivered to the government yesterday.

He also delivered a bitter attack on "coalitions" within Germany, aiming a special shaft at Adolf Hitler, Nazi leader.

"When you gentlemen of the Nazis," he said, "begin your class warfare against the fine people, against the barons, and when you think success at the elections will follow such tactics, I am afraid you are in for a bitter disappointment."

Use of Troops Opens Dispute In Washington

Capital's Police Chief Denies He Asked Help Of Soldiers

Washington—(P)—Just who first advised using troops in the bonus army disturbance of July 28, was in dispute today, with District of Columbia commissioners joining the justice department in designating the police and the police chief issuing a public denial.

The dispute began with a statement by Brigadier General Pelham D. Glassford, discussing assertions in Attorney General Mitchell's report to President Hoover on the bonus marchers. The police head said some of these were "in conflict with police records or with facts known to the police department."

Included was a denial that Glassford had "replied in the affirmative" when "asked the direct question whether he thought it was necessary to secure the assistance of federal troops." Instead, Glassford said:

"I stated that the police could hold the area had been repossessed during the morning. I stated that if further efforts toward evicting the veterans by the police was insisted upon that afternoon, there doubtless would be more rioting and possible bloodshed."

"I recommended that should further evicting be required that day, the federal troops should be called upon to do it."

Soon after Glassford issued his statement, the justice department made public the copy of a letter received from the board of commissioners on Aug. 2. It stated that Glassford had conferred with the commissioners soon after the first clash with veterans and said:

"Out of Control"

"The former (Glassford) was asked by the commissioners if the situation was out of his control, to which he replied in the affirmative. Major Glassford further stated in substance that the police could no longer hold the bonus marchers in check."

"He was then asked a direct question whether he thought it necessary to secure the assistance of federal troops, to which he replied he did."

The justice department added: "That the statement will confirm the accuracy of the statements contained in this letter. They are also confirmed by written statements in the possession of the department, made a few days after the riots by responsible police officials who were acting with Major Glassford during the course of the riots on July 28."

Last night the commissioners issued a reply to Glassford. It said:

"The commissioners of the District of Columbia assert positively that Major Glassford stated to them the situation in the affected area was beyond the control of the police; that in response to a direct question as to whether the presence of troops was necessary, Major Glassford stated positively that the presence of troops was necessary."

"Two of the commissioners then visited the scene of the disturbance and likewise were convinced that the presence of troops was necessary if law and order were to be restored and preserved. They thereupon asked that troops be sent to the affected area."

"The commissioners believe that the presence of troops alone prevented more serious bloodshed and far greater disorder."

"Classified statements also took authority to back for not advising him when the troops were called."

"The information came to me first from a newspaper reporter. I was in command at the scene of a difficult situation which was wholly unaffected by the call for federal troops. I have never been informed why the commissioners did not notify me instantly when the troops were called."

He continued in part:

"Attorney General Mitchell states: 'It is probable the bonus army brought into the city of Washington the largest aggregation of criminals that had ever assembled in the city at one time.' According to police records and statistics there is less crime in the District of Columbia during June or July than during the month of August after the veterans had been evicted."

"The report stresses Communism, crime and subversive influences. There are of course many demonstrations of patriotism and discipline by the great mass of the unemployed veterans. The facts are that Communists and their ignorant followers were relatively few."

"It is not necessary to defend in this statement the policies followed unwaveringly by the police department in preserving law and order for a period of two months—policies of humanity and of respect for the rights of citizens under the laws and the constitution."

"It is a matter of gratification to the police department that as long as it remained unhampered in the application of the policies adopted, the disorders of any consequence occurred except by the action of a small group whose efforts were easily thwarted by police action and police strategy."

Found Slain

Weighted down with sand, the body of Tom McKay, above, 66, wealthy farmer of Oberlin, Kansas, was found in a creek a few miles from his home, after he had been missing since Sept. 1. His home had been ransacked and several strong boxes torn open by thugs who apparently killed him for money he kept in the house.

Sheriff and Three Deputies Named in Suit for $10,000

Sheriff Arthur Steenbock of Waupaca co., three deputies, and a surety company which issued their bonds, are named defendants in a suit for $10,000 damages, brought in circuit court at Milwaukee by Mr. and Mrs. George Popp, Sr., of Clintonville.

The Clintonville couple seek damages for the death of their son, George Popp, Jr., 15, who was killed Dec. 30, 1930, by the sheriff and his deputies when the youth arrived at a place where a package, supposedly containing money, demanded by extortionists, had been "planted."

It was claimed that the Popp youth, with others, attempted to extort $10,000 from Dr. W. H. Finney of Clintonville. The parents, in their complaint, state "said shooting was done by said sheriff and his deputies, without the existence of inevitable necessity for it," because they had the youth surrounded.

The deputies named are Frank Mulvaney, Orville Brewer, and Arthur Tick. The United States Fidelity and Guaranty company is named defendant because it went surety on the sheriff's bond.

Candidates for County Offices Address League

Concert by High School Orchestra Precedes Voters' Meeting

Major issues in the fall primary campaign were outlined by candidates for county, state and congressional offices at the first fall meeting of the First Ward Civic League at Edison school Monday evening.

A half-hour concert by several members of Appleton high school orchestra, under the direction of Jay Williams, preceded the short talks.

Speakers were Oscar J. Schmieg, Frank Wheeler, and Samuel Sigman, all candidates for district attorney; John Lappen, candidate for county treasurer; Mike Mack, Sinton, candidate for the state senate; Elmer H. Honkamp, Louis Nichols and August Laabs, candidates for the state assembly; Fred Giese, candidate for sheriff, and C. C. Nelson, candidate for congress from the eighth district.

Scoring the paternalistic attitude of state government in recent years and branding citizens of Wisconsin as slaves to the present state regime, Honkamp said it was time that people restore their rights as United States citizens.

Discussing the levying of taxes against state corporations and the taxation of dividends, Mr. Honkamp declared that any business taxed over 15 per cent is headed for bankruptcy. He said any money paid in taxes over the 15 per cent limit, meant that those funds which are required to build up a surplus to keep a business in a healthy condition.

Favors Car Insurance

Outlining his platform, Mr. Laabs said he was for a change in the primary election laws, favors compulsory automobile insurance, and for the abolition of many state laws which he said are old fashioned and antiquated.

Sympathizing with the state farmers, Mr. Mack said he was for the restoration of fair and just farm prices, and favored immediate and drastic reductions in the cost of state government. He said the present costs of government are far in excess of the people's ability to pay, and that too many are being forced into bankruptcy and pauperhood.

The various duties and activities of the district attorney's office were outlined by candidates for that office, Schmieg, Sigman and Wheeler. Schmieg touched on his six years as state assemblyman and four years as assistant district attorney. Sigman cited the need for solving the present economic situation, and Wheeler pointed to the two-fold duties of the district attorney's office. "The first he said, is to prosecute all violations of state laws, and the second is to act as legal advisor for the county."

Other speakers outlining their qualifications for office were Nichols, Giese, Lappen and Nelson.

CHILD BREAKS ARM

Cyril, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Nichols, route 1, Little Chute, fractured his arm in a fall from a wagon last week. The 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Wendt, route 6, Appleton, fractured his arm in a fall from the porch of his home.

Legion Considers Move to Censure President Hoover

Secretary Hurley Clashes With Floyd Gibbons On Use of Troops

Portland, Ore.—(P)—A proposed resolution censuring President Hoover for the use of troops to drive the bonus army from Washington, and others on the bonus and prohibition kept American legion convention committees busy today while the rank and file formed for the legion parade.

The presence of Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, who was cheered and booed in an appearance the opening day of the national convention, and who took exception to remarks of Floyd Gibbons, writer and radio speaker, over the bonus army evictions, heightened interest in controversial questions.

Hurley clashed with Gibbons during a dinner given by Henry L. Stevens, Jr., national commander of the legion last night.

Gibbons criticized the methods used in ejecting the B. E. F. from Washington, D. C. He accused the army of having started the fires which destroyed bonus camps and said the men had been ordered when the troops were called in.

Hurley responded to the challenge with characteristic fire.

"I have never failed to take it on the chin when I had anything to say to me, say it! I never thought the government was in danger. I have always believed the people of the nation have a peaceable way for settlement of their disputes and that they will use those peaceful methods."

"But when there are riots, peace must be restored."

Challenges Statement

"When men are rioting, when two lives have been taken, when the police and civil authorities of a city and district are overpowered by those rioters, I want to say to you that when any man tells you that is law and order, he is not stating the facts."

"My friends, Mr. Gibbons, told you that the soldiers set fire to the humble homes of these men. That is not the fact. The fires were set by the men themselves. No members of the army would do that. All the fatalities that occurred on the day of which you have heard so much took place before the arrival of the United States army."

Hurley spoke earnestly as he read the order he had written at President Hoover's direction.

"Now, can you find any fault with those orders?" He asked. "Are they unjustly harsh?" I ordered out the armed forces of the government to protect the marchers as well as others."

"There were men among that group in Washington who came in an orderly way to state their case for whom I would lay down my life to protect. There were wonderful fine men among them. But there were other men, there, too. All were not angels. And I want to tell you that this is a government of a majority and not a government of a minority."

Delegates cheered a speech by Mayor James M. Curley of Boston, who said war time heroes had been "shot down like dogs in the capital of our nation."

Hurley Cheered, Booed

The same audience greeted Secretary of War Hurley with mingled boos and applause, but cheered him after a brief address in which he carefully avoided controversial subjects and urged the convention to "get past partisan politics."

Hurley was said by members of the Oklahoma delegation to have accepted the badge of a delegate from that state and in doing so to have promised to vote for immediate bonus payment as an instructed delegate. However, he remarked later he probably would leave for Huron, S. D., before the matter comes to a vote.

The war secretary was expected to march in the ranks of today's parade as a buck private among the legionnaires from his home state. He had been asked to watch from the reviewing stand but preferred to march.

An admittedly hopeless battle against a demand for immediate payment of the bonus was waged vigorously by a group of delegates. Determined Pennsylvania delegates promised to carry their fight to the convention floor, if necessary, for a resolution endorsing the president for the manner in which the bonus expeditionary force was ejected from the capital.

Portland was given a foretaste of today's event in the 40 and 8 parade last night. The entire business district had been turned over to the legion. The main cause will close and traffic will be routed around it.

Local and federal authorities raided a number of soft drink parlors converted to "dugouts" by the addition of imitation log fronts and real alcohol to the beverages on sale. Several proprietors were arrested.

Mixed Swim to be Held At "Y" Pool Wednesday

The weekly mixed swim at the Y. M. C. A. pool will be held Wednesday night it was announced today by W. S. Ryan, physical director. The swim originally was postponed because of the swimming meet, but the Wednesday program has been abandoned. Inaugurated several weeks ago, mixed swim periods have gained in popularity, Mr. Ryan said.

C. C. Directors Will Meet Friday Noon

Directors of the chamber of commerce will meet Friday noon at Hotel Northern. They will hear a report on plans for Wisconsin Products Week by Dr. E. H. Purdy, chairman, a report on retail division activities from Karl Haugen, and on the promotion committee from Harry B. Sylvester.

MR. COOLIDGE ON THE REFUGEE

Writing in the Saturday Evening Post Mr. Coolidge has stated the Republican Case. It appears that to the calamities of the past three years no single Republican has in any way contributed. In his own record and in that of his successor Mr. Coolidge finds nothing that should have been done differently; he believes that at all times during the boom and during the depression the Republican Party has continued to be "one of the most effective instruments of popular government that ever existed."

To achieve such sublime complacency in the face of all that has happened it has been necessary for Mr. Coolidge to reconstruct and reinterpret the historical record. His method may be studied in a specific case, in his account of the attitude of his own Administration towards the great bull market. We are told that in the winter of 1928-1929 he became alarmed and put himself in contact with the Federal Reserve Board. At that time, it should be noted, brokers' loans were more than twice what they had been two years earlier and the average price of stocks had doubled in the same time. Thus for two years of the most extravagant bull market in history Mr. Coolidge was not alarmed.

In fact, though he does not allude to the fact, it was in the middle of that bull market that Mr. Coolidge intervened with his famous statement that "the record-breaking increase in brokers' loans is not large enough to cause unfavorable comment." But in the twelve months following that statement the increase of brokers' loans reached a volume sufficient to give Mr. Coolidge alarm.

He tells us that when he felt alarmed he consulted the Federal Reserve Board and found that "they were using their influence quietly, as was necessary, to check speculation, and for that reason they favored raising the interest rates, which had to be done carefully to avoid injuring non-speculative business." This will be news to the banking world. For the record is undisputed that from the winter of 1929 to the late summer the Federal Reserve Board was so "careful" about raising the rate that it refused to let the Federal Reserve Bank of New York raise its rate. It was not until August, which was two months before the crash, that the Washington Board gave permission to the New York Bank. By that time brokers' loans had risen another 30 per cent from the date of Mr. Coolidge's first alarm and stock prices another 50 per cent.

Yet even now Mr. Coolidge believes that it was right not to raise the rate and arrest the speculation in the winter at the time when he first became alarmed. He still thinks Washington followed the right policy because the other policy of raising the rate would have injured business. Mr. Coolidge is no half-hearted partisan. Whatever his party has done, even to letting speculation run wild, was the careful, cautious, sound, safe and conservative thing to do. It is almost beautiful to behold such untroubled faith.

In this one incident there appears the whole process of Mr. Coolidge's mind in dealing with the central question of the campaign. He believes implicitly (a) that the Coolidge prosperity rested on solid foundations, and (b) that the Hoover defense against depression has been adequate. His task then is to explain why the good prosperity over which he presided was followed so quickly by the bad depression against which Mr. Hoover had to fight so hard.

Unless he admits that the Coolidge prosperity was unsound, and contained within itself the seeds of its own destruction, Mr. Coolidge has to find plausible reasons, totally unconnected with the Republican policies, which accounts for the abrupt and catastrophic collapse. He has found reasons. They are in part "over-speculation" by the great body of the people, a little, the foreigner mostly, and the Republican party not at all. Having absolved his party completely, he is thus able to argue not only that it should be continued in power, but that it should maintain intact its whole system of policies.

We have already seen how Mr. Coolidge absolves himself and his party of all responsibility for the speculation. We have now to inquire into the manner in which he projects into the outer world the whole responsibility for the world depression. He does it by the rather simple method of flat assertion. Thus he asserts that "in the late winter of 1930" there were many indications of a business revival, but that this revival was stopped by "a world-wide crash in agricultural products." This crash he goes on to say had its origin outside the United States.

Yet in 1929 the United States produced nearly a fifth of the world's wheat, nearly a third of the world's tobacco, over half of the world's corn, over half of the world's cotton. If there was a "world crash" in these commodities does it make any sense to say that our country which occupies so powerful a position in the world is wholly unconnected with a world-wide phenomenon? World prices collapsed, including the prices of those leading commodities of which we are the principal producers. Mr. Coolidge asks us to believe that in this world where we are in economic and financial contact with far the greatest power, it was disorder elsewhere and no errors of our own, which brought on the debacle.

Yet it is necessary for Mr. Coolidge to make the claim. For the alternative is to admit that the Coolidge prosperity was in reality a gigantic inflation arising out of a profound maladjustment of American economic policy. By means of a tariff which limited the imports of manufacturers, by means of forced draught mass production, we sold foreigners that year 665 millions of goods more than we bought. We lent to foreigners 944 million dollars net on top of the 2,000 million net we had lent them in the five preceding years. We drew 272 millions of gold after we already possessed about half the monetary gold of the world. All the other debts of the outer world, including war debts, may be ignored for, broadly speaking, they were balanced by the expenditure of American tourists, remittances of immigrants, and other obligations by Americans to foreigners.

The outstanding facts are that at the culmination of the Coolidge era we were selling nearly a billion dollars more than we bought, lending a billion abroad, and drawing heavily on the depleted gold supplies of the outer world. These three facts go a long way to explain the illusions of prosperity. We were selling prodigiously and acquiring paper evidences of debt, and on this paper we were pyramiding values and enjoying that appearance of extreme prosperity which is characteristic of inflation.

But these same facts go a long way also to explain the subsequent collapse. For the moment we stopped lending our customers and debtors the money to pay their obligations, they were forced to cut their purchases, to dump their goods, and to contract their credit. Thus prices had to fall and they had to bring down with them the whole pyramid of paper values built upon a radically unbalanced economic regime.

Thus the causes of the depression lies neither wholly in the United States nor wholly outside of it, but in the relation between the United States and the debtor nations. There were other world-wide maladjustments, of course, notably between France and the debtor nations, and there were profound political disturbances arising out of the failure to make peace after the Great War. But the American maladjustment, in which the Republican party tried to make us at once the creditor and to maintain a huge "favorable" balance of trade, was the most serious of all the economic disorders in the world.

It created an unmanageable volume of debt and shut off the normal means of discharging debt. It perverted the development of American industry by stimulating an over-investment in industries of export and set a fashion in tariffs which has destroyed the market for the surplus of those industries. It has left us not merely with the temporary consequences of an ordinary business depression but with a permanent structural dislocation of capital and labor which is likely to leave us, even after some recovery, with a problem like England's, of permanent unemployment.

Yet Mr. Coolidge, surveying the past, finds nothing that he would change. He proposes that his party should continue in the same course. We are asked, in short, to face the future having learned nothing from the past.

If Mr. Coolidge speaks the mind of his party, then we have here the best of all reasons why that party should be displaced. For while a good case might be made by the Republicans if they said that having gone through the depression they had learned much from the experience and were prepared to apply the lessons, no case can be made for them if in the manner of Mr. Coolidge they are completely satisfied with themselves and their policies and their record.

There are limits beyond which complacency in government becomes a danger to the state. Mr. Coolidge's complacency is well beyond that limit.

State Labor Group Secretary to Talk At Meeting Here

J. J. Handley, secretary of the Wisconsin Federation of Labor, will be the speaker at a special meeting of Appleton labor at Trades and Labor hall Wednesday evening. The meeting in Appleton and all other labor unions in Appleton and all other laborers are being invited, was arranged by Carl Smith, president of the Appleton Trades and Labor council. The council will hold a short business session in advance of the special meeting.

Chief Urges Stop Signs At Dangerous Crossing

Arterial stop signs, to halt east and west bound traffic on W. Washington-st. at the intersection with N. Superior-st., are recommended by Police Chief George T. Prim as a remedy for a serious traffic hazard that exists at this corner. Since the post office and the Appleton Post-Crescent have located on sites at this intersection, the amount of traffic there, both vehicular and pedestrian, has increased enormously. Traffic going south on Superior-st. and east on Washington-st. does not have a clear view of it as it approaches the intersection, and while there have not been any serious accidents recorded, yet many residents of the streets are asking that steps be taken at once to alleviate the condition.

Chief Prim, after studying the situation, said he thought that if east and west bound traffic on W. Washington-st. was made to stop at the intersection, that much of the hazard would be removed. He pointed out that traffic on W. Washington-st. is lighter than it is on Superior-st. He said that observation revealed that many of the cars that approach superior-st. on Washington turn to go either north or south on Superior.

Hunters Warned to Guard Against Spore

Madison—(P)—The approach of the hunting season led the state board of health today to warn hunters against the tetanus spore that causes lockjaw.

The spores lurk in the topsoil, in street dust, on farm tools, utensils, nails, clothing, skin and other places, the board said. Gunshot carry the germ from the slothing or skin surface deep into the tissues, the board said.

Timely use of tetanus anti-toxin could have prevented most of the deaths from this cause which averaged 21 in Wisconsin annually for the past five years. Germicides cannot kill tetanus spores, the board warned, and prompt surgical care is considered the best insurance against lockjaw.

The board pointed out that use of the anti-toxin during the world war limited the number of cases

After Paske and Zimmerman returned home, members of the gang learned of the theft, and about daybreak telephoned Paske, telling him to drive to Baraboo at once.

The "big shots" wanted him. Paske stopped for Zimmerman, but while the latter was getting dressed a car drove into the yard. Somebody in the machine told Paske to "get moving." Paske turned his car toward Baraboo with the gang car close behind. At the intersection of Highway 12 and the Reedsburg road, about 200 yards from Zimmerman's farm, two automobiles followed him.

One of the cars, which had been following drove up alongside the other two automobiles stopped nearby, and a man jumped to the running board of Paske's car and fired four shots.

Phil Says Monied Enemies of Father His Present Foes

Calls Depression Offspring Of Government-Monopoly System

(By the Associated Press)

Gov. Philip F. LaFollette, recalling the fight his father made to keep this country out of the World war, told an audience at Watertown last night that the Progressive candidates are opposed in this campaign by "the same monied interests that opposed my father so bitterly."

"The depression is the offspring of the partnership between government and the 'staple' monopoly system," he said. "The World war was a greatly accentuated phase of this ruinous process. The stalwarts with their monopoly system and big business prompted the war. Their greed for wealth turned this country into a turmoil of bloodshed to fatten their own pocketbooks."

LaFollette described how his father fought in the United States senate to keep the country out of the war and how reactionaries in Wisconsin and other states ridiculed him.

"They branded him as a traitor, a slacker, a pro-German. In Richland Center they hanged him in effigy, but he gave no quarter in his fight against entrenched wealth," the governor said.

"Now, when money is needed to repair the damage, feed the needy and put the jobs to work, those stalwarts who were so eager to tell you to sacrifice your lives or to buy Liberty bonds, are not so eager to sacrifice a portion of their own net income in an emergency as critical as the World war."

The governor's brother, Senator Robert M. LaFollette, speaking in behalf of the Progressive ticket, said in an address broadcast by radio that he was in favor of organized wealth is backing a millionaire candidate for governor in Wisconsin.

Charges Slush Fund
"With a huge slush fund at their command, collected for the most part from large income taxpayers, they are circulating tons of literature, seeking to use the country weeklies, and have employed literally an army of hired workers who are spreading misinformation," the senator said.

During the Kohler administration, he said, all funds for relief of the unemployed and indigents were raised through taxes on general property. When Governor LaFollette sought to raise $17,000,000 for relief through income taxes, stalwarts in control of the state senate fought the bill for weeks, finally resorting to a filibuster, in order to prevent taxation through income taxes on wealthy persons, he said.

John B. Chapple, conservative candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator, said in a campaign address in Milwaukee last night that Senator John J. Blaine, incumbent, "is a political four-flusher who is trying to get away with a poker game bluff."

Chapple spoke to three Milwaukee audiences during the day, assuring them that he is in favor of immediate cash payment of the bonus and believes the prohibition question should be settled immediately in accordance with the desires of the majority of the citizens of the respective states.

"Blaine got into office six years ago on a bluff and now he is trying to get away with it," Chapple said. "Blaine belongs to the party. The only time he is in the Republican line is when he wants to get his name on the Republican ballot. The rest of the time he snarls at the Republican leaders and opposes Republican principles."

Chapple said Blaine has betrayed the farmer, the worker, the homeowner and the real producers of America.

150 Hear Hughes Attack Policies Of Republicans

Little Chute Rally Addressed by Democratic Candidate for Congress

The "era of privilege" under the administration of President Harding, Coolidge and Hoover was bitterly assailed in an address last night at a Democratic rally at the village hall at Little Chute by James E. Hughes, DePere, candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress from the Eighth district.

About 150 attended the meeting, which had been arranged by the Outagamie County Democratic committee. Stephen D. Balliet, county chairman, presided.

Mr. Hughes especially attacked President Hoover and his policies, which have retarded the return to normalcy, he declared. He scored the Republican stand on the prohibition question for its straddling and pointed to what he termed the clear-cut stand taken by his party and its presidential candidate.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mr. Hughes discussed Mr. Roosevelt's record of public service and said that he was by far the most capable man seeking the presidency in this campaign.

In introducing Mr. Balliet, Anton Jansen, village president and secretary of the Outagamie County Farmer-Labor and Progressive league, declared that he was a Progressive Republican but that he supported Alfred E. Smith for the presidency four years ago and that he was supporting Mr. Roosevelt in this campaign.

Almost Half of States in Nation In Roosevelt Tour

Democratic Candidate Makes Stop at Cleveland, Then on to St. Louis

Cleveland—(P)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and his presidential campaign party arrived here on their special train from Albany, N. Y., at 8:38 a. m., (eastern standard time.)

En Route with Governor Roosevelt, Dunkirk, N. Y., (P)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt sped westward today to point his half of the national political picture for voters of the midwest and far west.

Citizens of nearly half the nation's states will hear or see the governor before the three weeks coast-to-coast campaign sweep is over. Spurred by the campaign manager's report that the midwest and west are favorable areas for the national ticket, the governor hoped to win enough votes there to insure victory.

Mr. Roosevelt's name glittered in electric lights from the observation car as his special—not so elaborate as Alfred E. Smith's special of 1928—pulled out of Albany at midnight and roared away toward Ohio. Cleveland was the first scheduled stop.

The Democratic presidential candidate boarded his private car "Pioneer" shortly before midnight, planning to go immediately to bed. He took with him the farm relief speech he will deliver at Topeka tomorrow, planning to make a few final revisions.

Silent on Maine Vote
Lieut. Governor Herbert H. Lehman saw Mr. Roosevelt off. They talked over the Maine election results at the train, but neither had any comment.

Mr. Roosevelt's first talk with western Democratic leaders will be at Jefferson City, Mo., tonight. Delegates to the state Democratic convention at the Missouri capital will board his car during a stop of nearly two hours in that city.

Two Denver stops today were scheduled to be brief. From Cleveland, where a brief operating halt was scheduled at 8 a. m. E. S. T., the train goes to St. Louis for a 15 minute stop at 6:15 p. m. C. S. T. Arrival at Jefferson City is scheduled for 9 o'clock.

From Jefferson City, the candidate will describe a great circle tour of the west, from Kansas City to Seattle in the far northwest, then to Los Angeles in southern California and back through Denver to Chicago. His train will travel through 21 states.

Arriving at Kansas City tomorrow morning, Governor Roosevelt will be joined by John N. Garner, his running mate, who will go with him to Topeka.

At three other places after Topeka the Democratic standard bearer will make formal speeches. They will be at Portland, Ore., Sioux City, Iowa, and at another place as yet undesignated.

There will be numerous other appearances, many of them from the observation platform of his train. But at Salt Lake City Mr. Roosevelt will leave the train for a rally at the tabernacle. At San Francisco there will be a demonstration at the Commerce club, and at Los Angeles a similar meeting in the Rose Bowl.

Will Rogers will welcome Mr. Roosevelt to Hollywood, and at the Williams, Ariz., ranch of Mrs. John C. Greenway, Arizona's national committeeman, the candidate will attend a rodeo.

Traveling in the governor's party are his daughter, Mrs. Curtis Dahl, his son, James, and James' wife, Linda Moley of Columbia university; Joseph P. Kennedy, New York and Boston financier, and members of his official staff.

Breckenridge Long, former under-secretary of state, and U. S. Senator Harry Hawes of Missouri, will join the party today. James A. Farley, national chairman, will board the train Sunday at Salt Lake City.

Passengers on the special include news writers, news photographers and motion picture cameramen.

HUNT FOR FIREBUG

New York—(P)—Police suspect a firebug started a tenement house blaze which killed Mrs. Rose LaBarba, 43, and Charles De Geronzi, 5, early this morning. Five others were injured. A half-filled gasoline can was found in a hallway of the house.

Two Fishermen Get Surprise as Fish Leaps Into Boat

Fishing is no trouble at all to William Hoffman, 1318 S. Jefferson-st, and Ernest Schumacher, 1310 S. Madison-st. They just sit in a boat in the middle of Lake Winnebago and the fish jump right into the boat. Yesterday an 18-inch pickerel leaped out of the water and into the boat. As a matter of fact, the two men were catching bass, and didn't have any desire for pickerel, but as long as he seemed so eager to join the mess in the bottom of the boat, they took him along.

Eight States Go To Polls Today In Primary Vote

Heavy Registration in All Indicates Exceptionally Heavy Ballots

(By the Associated Press)
Eight states held primary elections today.

Heavy registrations were noted in all of them. In some states, especially Vermont and New Hampshire, there has been little campaigning, the candidates holding their fire for the finals of Nov. 8. In others contests have been brisk, and local affairs were drawing large numbers to the polling places.

States holding primaries today were: Arizona, Colorado, Louisiana, Michigan, New Hampshire, Vermont, Washington and South Carolina.

Louisiana's "Kingfish," Senator Huey Long, has campaigned for Representative Overton who is seeking the nomination on the Democratic ticket for the seat now held by Senator Broussard.

Michigan with long record for Republicanism, like Maine, where Democrats showed a strength in yesterday's election that exceeded even the estimates of national leaders of their own party—was concerned chiefly with affairs of state and local interest, but politicians were watching the vote closely to see what it might portend in November.

Arizona took today's primary elections with more interest than in any recent years. Registration was the largest in the state's history, and the number of candidates set a new record. Arizona has generally been Republican in its presidential choice but Democratic in state elections.

Former Senator Cole Blease's attempt to win the Democratic senatorial nomination from Senator E. D. Smith occupied South Carolina voters, and in Colorado senatorial nominations also were of uppermost interest to national observers.

One of prohibition's leading exponents in congress, Senator Jones of Washington, faced sharp challenge for renomination. Senator Porter Dale was unopposed for Republican renomination in Vermont, and Senator Moses of New Hampshire appeared to have little to fear from a write-in candidate, Joseph E. Richards, who filed for a place on the ticket too late.

Georgia's primary is tomorrow.

Rare Operation Performed By 2 Appleton Surgeons

Miss Dorothea Meggers, 19-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Meggers, Clintonville, is recovering from an exceedingly delicate operation performed at St. Elizabeth hospital recently by two Appleton surgeons. The operation, an incision of the pericardial sac, was the first of its kind ever performed at the local hospital.

Infection from a boil on the arm resulted in an abscess in the pericardial sac, which surrounds the heart. After taking out sections of two ribs, the surgeons opened the sac, which had enlarged to the size of a person's head, and placed a tube in the space between the heart and the sac. Fluid drained out for 10 days, and then the sac healed over.

The two dangers attending the operation, the surgeons explained, are shock and the piercing of the lung cavity. To overcome the shock to the heart when the sac was incised, novocaine was injected into the pericardium. The entire operation was performed with a local anesthetic.

Feverish Pace Set as Primary Election Nears

Candidates in Haste to Garner Last-Minute Votes—Ballot Week From Today

By H. K. Derus

One week from today the voters of Outagamie-co will go to the polls to select their candidates for county offices. At the same time they will help select candidates for all state offices and for congress.

As the primary campaign battle swings into its last week the various candidates are feverishly making last minute efforts to strengthen their positions.

From a standpoint of political activity the primary campaign so far has been one of the most exciting this county has seen in a decade or more. Four factions are fighting for votes and three of these have conducted the most vigorous and aggressive campaigns they have ever fought.

The Democrats, feeling they have a chance to win national, state and county offices this year, have organized a committee and conducted a campaign that far exceeds that of four years ago. They have more candidates in the field, more workers enrolled, and are holding more meetings with larger attendances.

Bitter Struggle

The two factions of the Republican party, the Progressives and the Regulars or Stalwarts, engaged in one of their bitterest battles in years, have been at swords points throughout. The Progressives brought Governor Philip LaFollette, United States Senator John J. Blaine, State Treasurer Solomon Levitan, Lieutenant Governor Henry Huber and other lesser political lights into the county in their efforts.

Today the Progressives brought Burton K. Wheeler, Democratic senator from Montana, to Appleton to appeal for votes for his Progressive friends. Whether the Progressives are planning any further assaults in the county is not known. Their activities are being directed by the Outagamie County Farmer-Labor and Progressive League.

With the Outagamie County Republican committee conducting the fight for the Kohler ticket, the Regulars countered every thrust of the Progressives. They brought Ex-Governor Walter J. Kohler, John B. Chapple, candidate for the senate, M. K. Eberlein, Shawano attorney, Edward J. Samp, candidate for state treasurer, and others to the county.

The Progressives say that Governor LaFollette's audience here was much larger than that of Mr. Kohler's. The Stalwarts answer that half of his crowd consisted of Democrats or Stalwarts, who were there merely to boost him.

LaFollette Led

Two years ago Outagamie-co gave LaFollette 9,094 and Kohler 7,151 votes. The Stalwarts claim this majority cannot be retained at the primary next Tuesday and the Progressives say that it will be increased. Two years ago Hammersley, the Democratic candidate, polled but 369 votes in the primary election. The Democrats this year claim their vote will be increased many times. They claim anywhere from 1,500 to 5,000 votes in the primary.

In Kaukauna, Little Chute and Kimberly and in the towns in that end of the county, there is considerable Democratic sentiment. At Kaukauna last week 500 persons attended Democratic primary. The town of Buchanan, the town of Kaukauna and the city of Kaukauna are furnishing four of the Democratic candidates for state and county offices. Rallies in Little Chute and Kimberly drew as large crowds as did the Republican rallies in those same places. A big Democratic vote at the spring elections served to stir the ambition of the Democrats.

For the Democratic ticket the county committee has brought F. Ryan Duffy, candidate for the United States senate; Leo P. Fox, Chilton, and William B. Rubin, Milwaukee, candidates for governor, and James E. Hughes, candidate for congress from the eighth district, here for talks.

Even the Communists have an eye on the votes which Outagamie-co will cast next week, as is evidenced by the fact that they have conducted two rallies in Appleton and several in Kaukauna. However, their meetings have been attended by small crowds.

The Republicans have candidates for every office. The only officers who have no opposition in the primary are: A. G. Koch, resister of deeds, and John E. Hantschel, county clerk. The Democrats have candidates for every office except that of assemblyman from the first district and for county clerk. There are contests among Democrats for the nomination for sheriff, assemblyman from the second district, and for surveyor.

Quincy, Ill.—(7)—John Blood, arrested last week and sentenced to the house of correction for vagrancy, was questioned yesterday by operatives of a chain of Chicago drug stores on suspicion that he might have knowledge of recent robberies of the stores. Police said that Blood formerly was employed by the drug concern. Blood was arrested, police said, after he posed as a Green Bay, Wis., professional football player of the same name.

Leaf Hopper Now Killed by Spray

95 Per Cent Kill Obtained in Cranberry Lake Experiments

Madison—Spraying to control the bluish green leaf hopper of cranberries obtained a 9 per cent kill in experiments tried for the first time this summer at Cranberry Lake according to Vernon G. Goldsworthy, assistant cranberry specialist of the division of insect and plant disease control of the department of agriculture and markets. Ten acres of cranberries were sprayed with pyrethrum to obtain the kill. Before spraying, as many as 235 hoppers per hundred sweeps were found.

Nicotine sulphate spray was used on part of the section but did not prove as effective as the pyrethrum according to the specialist.

Flooding was tried at Union Cranberry marsh with excellent results on two year old plantings heavily infested with the leaf hopper which causes the cranberry disease "false blossom." The section was completely flooded as late as July 8 with the result that a one hundred per cent kill of the hopper was obtained and the fruit did not appear to be injured to any extent.

As a rule, the specialist states that flooding at such a time is not to be risked on older plantings. Flooding of older plantings should be done

Hunters Must File Report on Killings

Outagamie-co hunters who failed to comply with the state law last year in regard to filing reports on the amount of game they killed, will be unable to get hunting licenses this year until they have made their reports, according to John E. Hantschel, county clerk.

Mr. Hantschel this week received a notice from the Wisconsin Conservation commission in which he was instructed to withhold licenses from hunters who failed to file a report last year. Special blanks have been furnished to Mr. Hantschel for those who failed to make out the reports.

towards the end of June and before the plants bloom.

Plantings made this year should be flooded next season according to Mr. Goldsworthy, and under the proper conditions nearly one hundred per cent kill of the hopper can be expected. As the bluish green leaf hopper is the only known carrier of "false blossom," the disease should also be at a minimum on plantings so treated.

Plan Events for Women at Madison

Special Program for Farm Wives at Field Day Saturday

The women's program, for the second of this year's farm folks field day at the University of Wisconsin farm at Madison Saturday, is based on the plan of "living at home" and it promises to be unusually practical and helpful, according to Mrs. Nellie Kedzie Jones, state home economics extension leader. Gustav A. Sell, Outagamie-co agent, is urging farmers and their wives to attend this field day. Results of crop experiments will be seen at that time.

The demonstrations and exhibits by Mrs. Jones and her staff will continue from 9 a. m. until 4 p. m. and will include suggestions for the best ways of feeding the family through the use of home grown foods, insuring the winter's food supply, making the jelly, short cuts to tender, flaky pie crust and best ways to cook cabbage.

Miss Gladys Meloche and Miss Ruth Peck will demonstrate the part played by color in transforming old clothing into attractive made-overs.

For those most interested in home furnishings, there will be helpful pointers on making wool comforts at home, and an exhibit of handsome curtains that can be made at small cost. Miss Wealthy Hale and Mrs. Margaret McCordic, who are in charge of this section of the program, also plan to have some new quilt patterns which the field day visitors may take home with them.

A talk by President Glenn Frank and a picnic lunch on the lawn are other features of the day's program.

Friends and Voters:

I chose to make my campaign by way of public speeches. I had hoped that in this way I could talk to all of you so that you might be in a better position to judge my fitness for the high office that I seek. The County is too large to attempt to meet each voter personally as much as I would have liked to do so.

Please consider my candidacy also along with my record of experience as a lawyer, as the Secretary to Congressman George J. Schneider for five years at Washington, D. C., as the Attorney for the Appleton Trades and Labor Council, and my active position on National, State and Local issues that have entered into this campaign, as well as my affiliation on the side of Labor and the Progressive cause.

I sincerely hope that I can merit your support, and if nominated on September 20th, and elected to the office of District Attorney, I promise that I will to the best of my ability, faithfully perform the duties of that office without fear, favor or prejudice.

I assure you from the bottom of my heart that I appreciate the many courtesies extended to me in this campaign by my good neighbors and friends, and look confidently toward September 20th, feeling that the loyal and active support of my friends in their efforts to nominate me and elect me to the office of District Attorney will be rewarded with victory.

Keep up the good work my friends.

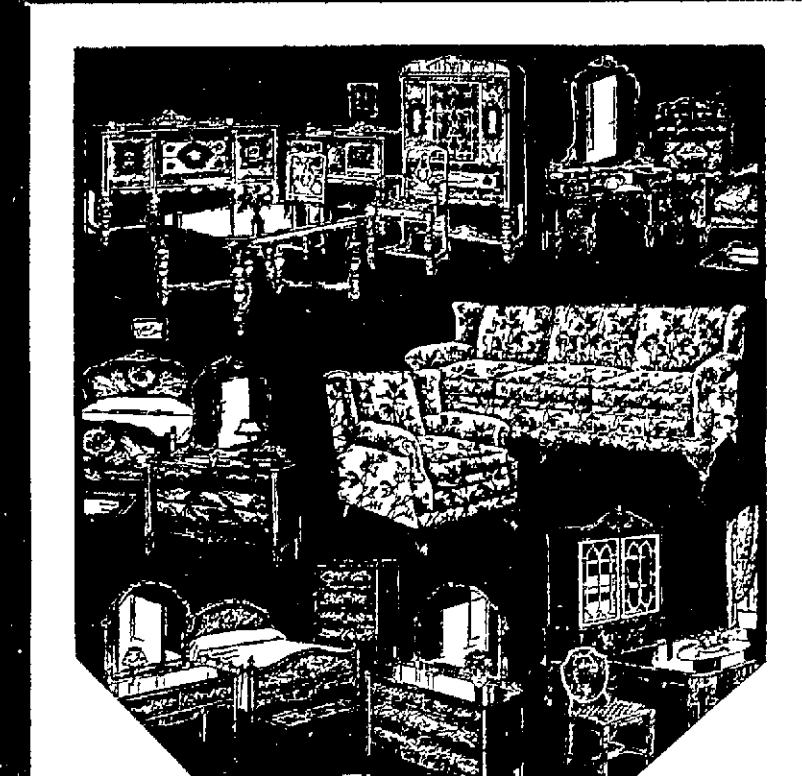

Faithfully and sincerely yours,

A CASH BONUS FOR MILLIONAIRES

Had the cash bonus passed in the Senate as it did in the House, and could enough votes be marshalled to override the veto of the President which was certain to have followed, the country would have faced about the most eccentric and delirious measure that was ever enacted into law outside of Mexico, Chile, Portugal.

Hundreds of thousands of doctors, lawyers, dentists, teachers, brokers, bankers, manufacturers, merchants, public officials, skilled artisans and others would have had forced upon them a thousand to fifteen hundred dollars apiece, whether they needed it or not. Something approaching 80 out of every hundred men affected were so situated that they could well get along without the cash bonus.

And then what would the government have done to get the money, the necessary 2½ billions? As the government doesn't own any gold mines it would have had to borrow the money, and in order to meet necessary payments of interest (interest would have been nearly a hundred million a year) and a part of the principal it would have to levy taxes.

The millions of farmers and laborers, as well as others, would have to pay their share of these taxes just as surely as the earth revolves and whether or not they were misled by the Blaines and Brookharts into believing the contrary. The only way to avoid taxes is to move to a South Sea island. You cannot even avoid them here by dying.

That would have been a brilliant spectacle, millions of farmers and workers depriving themselves, and other businesses and industries saddled further to pay a bonus to 4 million men, 3 million of whom certainly did not need it. For real brainwork that bonus measure was a lollipalooza.

Three in Wisconsin's delegation at Washington voted against it.

There was Congressman Stafford of Milwaukee who couldn't be swept off his feet.

There was Congressman Reilly of Fond du Lac, Wisconsin's only Democrat at Washington, who manfully declared that he would accept defeat at the polls any day rather than vote for such a preposterous measure.

And there was Senator LaFollette who had the courage to attempt to stem the riotous tide the Blaines and Brookharts were trying to let loose upon a country which was making every manful effort to get to its feet.

AN EXCITING MOVIE

Moving picture patrons will recall a recent film the plot of which concerns activities of naval air bombers. The production was made in cooperation with sea and air units of the United States fleet and depicted air bombing operations against a simulated enemy.

This picture has been showing in Tokyo to an unusually large attendance. An aroused public interest has been due to something more than the well-known native approval of blood and thunder cinema.

Taken in connection with the international situation, the Japanese have readily accepted the idea that their country is the hypothetical enemy against which these bombing operations are directed. Certain newspapers, whether from overzealous news mongering or from ulterior motives, have seized upon this picture as evidence of hostile intent toward Japan and the people are flocking to the theatres to see this Juggernaut that threatens them from the East.

Without doubt, any possible effect that this war picture might have upon international relations was never given a thought by its producers, but being shown in Japan at a time when Japanese policies are being subjected to censure, especially by the United States government, and with the Japanese openly curious at the concentration of the American fleet in the Pacific, the picture becomes something more than entertainment to the Nipponese.

While thoughtful Japanese would avoid any such interpretation, the picture has been the means of stirring up ill-feeling among certain classes, which can only add to the many petty and exasperating problems which make broad international understanding difficult to achieve.

In the United States many alleged "secret documents" have been published as evidence of Japanese plans for conquest. As for example, the so-called Tanaka Memorial in the course of which a former Japanese premier supposedly outlined to the Mikado his plan for the conquest of Asia and for war with America. Other instances of similar character could be cited, many no doubt greatly exaggerated, but all tending to strike fire at a time when the international tinder box is particularly dry.

The war danger is no academic matter. It takes root in unexpected places and in times like the present, finds ample fertilization from the undercurrents of radical suspicions and animosities.

This moving picture under discussion appears to have carved its own peculiar niche in the international disturbance which now exists and is more evidence of the need for a rigid censorship over the character of American films exported.

AT LAST!

Mr. Huber who is running for the 'steenth time for lieutenant-governor (we really cannot remember when he wasn't running for that job and alarming the country-side) but who has been unable to find a governor who will die or resign and thus permit greatness to fall upon his otherwise shrinking shoulders, has really saved the campaign from going stale.

"Be not deceived," quoth this heavy Shakespearean tragedian, "the enemy whispering at your elbow is a paid hireling of the stalwart forces."

So that's who it was? Most people thought the fellow at their elbow was really hungry as he asked for a quarter and mumbled something about jobs peering out when promised by politicians. But Mr. Huber knows his politics. Politics, to him, is war. War means spies and stealth, and above everything, propaganda.

But war means much more than all that, and therein Mr. Huber is wise, worldly wise.

Victory always depends upon the fighting spirit. To create a fighting spirit during the World war the land was covered with pictures of evil-faced persons listening intently to overhear trivial conversation and we were told, "Sh-h! A spy is at your elbow!"

That made us mad. So we gritted our teeth, cursed the foul enemy for his underhanded methods—just think of having a spy right at our elbow—and sharpened our knives for the mortal fray.

Mr. Huber is not only a general, he is a field marshal. He wears five or six stars. He is a prince of strategists. As a tactician he has von Moltke backed into the North Sea.

He is whipping his forces into shape. He knows that commanders have always told troops the enemy cut the throats of those who surrendered although they knew the enemy would be tickled to death to have them surrender.

We don't know what chances Mr. Huber would have of reelection if people really used their heads. But Mr. Huber is afraid to take chances. He wants them mad.

Soon we will hear again the familiar rumble of Wall street trucks loaded with gold and sent to corrupt fair Wisconsin. And then from statesman Huber: "Unhand me, low varlet and villain that thou art! And curses too upon you, Jack Dalton! The gal is mine!"

PUBLICITY HELPS

Any fear that the publication of loans made to banks by the Reconstruction Finance corporation might be injurious to those receiving such aid, appears to have been unjustified. In fact there is ample evidence that the effect has been just the opposite.

At first thought one might believe that the knowledge of a bank's need for assistance would arouse unwholesome suspicion on the part of depositors and the public.

But the corporation had not been functioning long before there came the realization that it was not in the business of casting public funds about indiscriminately but was making loans only to banks and corporations which were fundamentally sound and able to furnish good collateral.

Thus instead of arousing suspicion of a bank's stability, a government loan has come to be considered more in the nature of a stamp of approval by a hard-headed business organization willing to lend on good security but expecting to get its money back.

This general attitude reflects the public's appreciation of the finance corporation as a conservative and businesslike agency and not merely a life saving device for business debility.

The Republican platform on the issue of 1864: "As slavery was the cause, and now constitutes the strength of this rebellion, and as it must be, always and everywhere, hostile to the principles of republican government, justice and national safety demand its utter and complete extirpation from the soil of the republic."

FISHERMAN PHILOSOPHY

A fisherman will rise at four and tip-toe softly from the door
And smile to see the morning sun come up
With shafts of flame,
And with the sweet breeze at his throat, he'll sing the while he rows his boat
And take the burdens of his sport as parcels of his game.
He'll never sit around and whine because he gets a tangled line
Nor whimper that his lot is hard the days when bites are few;
But knowing where the big ones lurk, with brain and brawn he'll gladly work
And count the day well spent when he comes home with one or two.

A fisherman may weary grow, but seldom will he let you know.
Or count the troubles of his sport above the pleasure gained.
Should bait be lost or leader break, such slight annoyances he'll take
As part of every angler's lot and easily explained.

No fisherman will sit and cry and all the hard-ship ships agony
Nor tell what drudgery it is to wade in stream or bay.
He'll even, safe at home at night, with smiles of rapturous delight
Recount the thrilling story of the fish that got away.

So let's be fishermen, I say, and count what blessings fall our way
And take the disappointments and the burdens as they come.
Let's look on pain and care and strife as incidents of human life,
And not sit sighing o'er our woes till every-one is glum.
Let's reckon in the angler's way the final total of the day.

The beauty seen, the friends we've met, the little joys we've claimed,
And though we come back home at night, both bruised and weary from the fight
Of goals we've tried in vain to reach, we need not be ashamed.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

A NEURASTHENIC PROTEST WORTH HEARING.

I am a young woman recovering from a severe case of neurasthenia, she writes. Seems to me, Mr. Brady, your education on the disorders of nerves, has been sadly neglected, and what you don't know about the subject would fill a big book . . . For five months my eyes did not close in sleep . . . so nervous I could not talk to members of my family . . . your teachings about this denote ignorance . . . any neurasthenic will tell you he has a morbid self-consciousness and inferiority complex . . . I would like to see you develop a bad case of neurasthenia and then hear you speak your little piece—it would have a different tune, I'll wager you that . . . finally a surgeon discovered after a thorough examination tumors . . . What did I tell you? I quote from my article published July 17, 1932:

"I believe the majority of folk who attribute their ill health to nerves or neurasthenia or nervous weakness or one kind or another have something really the matter. Nevertheless I know that in a good many instances 'bad nerves' is purely an alibi by means of which the neurasthenic ducks, dodges, evades, pretends, makes believe, plays the snob, seeks to make folks think he is better than the common run, puts on airs, in short plays everything out an honest part with himself and his fellows."

This indignant young lady is right when she says what I don't know about nerves would fill a large book—fill many large books. Her 500-word protest confirms the truth of my teaching about "nerves."

There is no such thing as nerve energy, strength, power, and hence there can be no exhaustion of nerve power. This is physiological, and I state the physiological fact unequivocally and without fear of competent contradiction.

This young woman who has suffered so much from the "nervous" obsession, is so deeply obsessed that even now, when, as she says, the diagnosis of her real trouble has been made, she rails at me because I try to lead other victims of the obsession toward the light.

At one point in her harangue she quotes some unidentified physician as having remarked that he'd rather have both his legs cut off than suffer with nerves as she did. I'll bet a barrel of olives against a bit, feeling that such much was not uttered by the doctor who diagnosed the patient's real trouble. It sounds more like the soothing talk of one of these dear doctors, very dear, who permit patients who have the price to muddle along with the "bad nerves" obsession.

Get it clear in your delicate mind, dumbbell! I believe the majority of "neurasthenics" are deceived, but a minority of them are working "bad nerves" as a racket. In order to bring understanding to the real victims I must endure the fury of the racketeers exposed.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Up From Slavery.

Received your little book on "Constipation Habit" and will say it is the finest investment I ever made. Followed strictly your suggestions and after seven days persistence found myself freed from the habit of 30 years. The amazing thing is that, just as you say, the function now regulates itself without any concern on my part. (L. M.)

Answer—Yes, yes, but 99 out of a hundred slaves of the habit are too dumb to get the idea. They are bowed under the weight of 30 or 50 years of nostrum and quack propaganda.

Headache Relief.
I have been greatly benefited by calcium lactate taken for a nasal cold which always came in April and lasted thruout the summer and never yielded to the treatment of many doctors. In return I wish to offer a relief we have found for headache accompanied by nausea and obstinate vomiting: Keep a thin cloth wet with rubbing alcohol or whiskey on pit of stomach. Do not let it get dry. Lay heavy wash cloth wrung out of ice water on eyes and brow, turning as it gets warm. When you are sure the stomach irritation is quieted, take one-fourth cup of black coffee. This treatment relieves attacks in a few hours that used to last all day. (A. P.)

Answer—Coincidentally, calcium lactate medication, as you have taken it for the hay fever, is sometimes an excellent remedy for migraine or periodic sick headache. The treatment you describe is grateful in any case.

Boric Acid Solution.
Mouthwash having antiseptic and breath sweetening qualities . . . (L. E. W.)

Answer—Rounded teaspoonful boric acid dissolved in pint boiled water. Flavor with peppermint or other aromatic if you wish. (Copyright, John F. Dille Co.)

Only inquiries of general interest will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. ## The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

NOW that we're past the break of dawn and our fine blockhead house is gone, let's form into a fine parade," said Duncy with a grin.

"I think that is a happy bunch and I will lead the blockhead bunch. Then, if you Tynites want to march, you, too, can fall right in."

"Wee Windy said, 'I'm lazy, son, but go ahead and have your fun. I'll flop beneath a great, big tree and watch you strut along. If right in step you all can keep, the stomping will not let me sleep. Thus I will watch and, if you're good, I'll clap both loud and long.'"

The blockheads had been trained before and they knew just what was in store. As Duncy shouted, "Form in line, they did as they were told."

"Now, please keep step," snapped Duncy. "You must do the best that you can. We'll all pretend that we are little soldiers, brave and bold."

One blockhead then seemed full of fright. It shouted, "I don't want to fight. I want to be a blockhead, not a soldier. Count me out!"

Before the little thing could run, brave Duncy cried, "Aw, it's just fun. We're going to march for exercise and you'll like that, no doubt."

At last two lines were formed, real straight, and Duncy didn't hesitate. He shouted, "Forward march," and then he stepped out, very proud.

The blockheads kept in perfect step as Windy shouted, "He! He! He! He!" The marching, in a half an hour, made quite a peppy crowd.

One of the blockheads said, "Let's quit. We all are surely feeling fit." And then it added, "We blockheads will form a funny stairs."

"You Tynites then can run up high until you're standing in the sky. And then a new adventure's bound to catch you, unawares." (Copyright, 1932)

(The Tynites find a strange thing at the end of the stairway.)

Seen And Heard In New York

BY WILLIAM GAINES

New York — It seems that snippy saleswomen always will be with us. It is especially gratifying to hear of a customer squelching one of them. And from three stories that have come to me recently, it looks as if the clerks have a batting average of zero-minus from their attempts to humiliate temperamental actresses.

A well known young player came to town from her suburban place recently, to do some shopping on Fifth avenue. She wore a simple sports outfit, not new, and not designed to make her look like the proverbial million dollars.

She wanted a lace collar for a frock she had at home, and dropped into an exclusive shop where she had bought other things before.

An aloof saleswoman heard her request, all the while eyeing the customer's garb. When the actress glanced at some collar under the counter glass, the clerk commented in an icy tone:

"Those are $16. You wouldn't care to look at those, I'm sure."

This girl could have paid $16 without going into bankruptcy, but the remark got under her skin.

"Dear me," she murmured in her best stage manner, "of course not. I want to see something much better."

The saleswoman registered surprise, and with more deference brought forth several boxes of collars.

"This one is $20," she explained, "and this one is $30—among the loveliest we have."

Got Their Goals, Anyway
"Oh, no," the actress responded critically, "I don't think much of these. Haven't you anything really nice?"

In a few minutes every box of lace collars in the shop had been brought out, the manager had been called and was most solicitous, and the patron was gloating. The manager offered to have a collar made for her but the actress insisted she must have one at once.

"I'm surprised," she concluded "to find a shop with the reputation of this one so completely lacking in the better things. However—my mistake."

And with that she strutted from the shop, leaving the clerk crestfallen and the manager fuming.

High Hat
Another actress—this one a star whose name I'm sure would be familiar to every reader—went shopping for a hat. She expected to pay $20 or $25, which seems plenty under present conditions.

A sales girl with the manner of a dowager showed her one which the star thought became her well.

"Only $80," said the girl, whose attitude was even more annoying than her patter. "A lovely hat. I bought one just like it."

"You do very well on $25 a week," was the star's withering retort.

The third actress, daughter of one of the most famous comedienne who ever lived, went to an automobile show and saw a car she liked.

It was raining that day, and she must not have looked very prosperous in her rain coat. Anyway, the manager of the exhibit dismissed her inquiries with the information that the price was $7,000.

This sensitive girl called for a blank check and filled it out, agreeing to take the car on one condition—

That the manager's young assistant get the commission.

TAKE 15,000 PRISONERS

On Sept. 13, 1918, the First American Army completely wiped out the St. Mihiel salient, taking more than 15,000 prisoners and extending the battle line past Norroy, Jaulny, St. Benoit and Hiesville.

Their advance was as much as 18 miles and their gains extended over a front of 35 miles.

Territory taken during the two days' fighting had been in the hands of the Germans since 1914.

Wiping out of the salient removed the threat of a German flank attack on Verdun and threatened the German fortress of Metz.

French troops on the Aisne renewed their attacks and advanced more than two miles on an 11-mile front.

The British steamer Galway Castle was sunk and 189 persons were lost.

Nicola Tesla, inventor, is trying to get a response from Mars and other planets. If he is successful, the Democrats might try asking him to get a response from Al Smith.

In 1927 and 1928 you used to drop in more often . . . and it wasn't always to buy something either.

Now, even tho' you are not buying as many clothes as you used to . . . why don't you run in anyway . . . we promise not to try and sell you something when you don't feel like buying.

Smith Friends Remain Foes Of Roosevelt

Economic Discontent to Hurt Hoover's Cause in Western New York

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Buffalo—Western New York presents an early season campaign appearance not unlike that of other presidential contests. Discontent over the economic situation is in evidence to such an extent that it will affect materially the voting, with a decided shift toward the Democratic side.

There are certain disaffections, however, which are already cropping out. One is the resentment by the Al Smith contingent against Roosevelt for what happened at Chicago. Undoubtedly this is going to cost the Democrats a good many votes. The other is the tendency among businessmen to support the Hoover ticket irrespective of how they voted four years ago. The latter are being influenced by a fear of the consequences in the economic sense if there is a change in administration. Whether this sentiment will affect the rank and file of the voters later remains to be seen but there already is noticeable a good deal of talk about "changing horses in midstream."

Western New York is for the moment interested however far more in the gubernatorial situation. Not only will the state convention be held here soon but the city of Buffalo has two candidates, Judge Kenefick, and Col. William J. Donovan seeking the Republican nomination.

Has Own Candidate
Each has his partisans and the fight looks as if it might be a vigorous one. It is a long time since Buffalo had a candidate for the governorship. Colonel Donovan has been living in Washington as assistant attorney general and recently has been practicing law in New York and is believed to have strength in both ends of the state.

With Lieut. Governor Lehman likely to be the gubernatorial nominee on the Democratic ticket there is every reason to believe that the governorship and the presidency will by no means be settled by the same vote in the Empire state.

Mr. Roosevelt has gained some ground through his handling of the Walker case but his record as governor has not particularly impressed the Republicans in the business group. As for the rank and file, the Roosevelt position on prohibition is far more popular than that of Hoover in the city of Buffalo but nobody knows how the rural districts are going to turn out. Roosevelt's victory last time as governor was achieved with a relatively small sized vote. It is not considered probable that the Roosevelt vote will in any way approximate the Smith vote and that the total cast for both the Republican and Democratic candidates will be less than your years ago. These predictions are based on the apparent apathy of the people and the lack of fanatical enthusiasm which characterized much of the support given both candidates four years ago.

Sample Proposals are Prepared for Project

Sample proposals for the contract on 11 miles of grading on Highway 10, between Manitowoc and Appleton, in Manitowoc and Calumet-cos, have been prepared at the division state highway office at Green Bay and submitted to the state department at Madison for approval. No date has been set as yet for receipt of bids on this project.

On Wednesday, at Madison, the commission will open proposals on 9 miles of grading on the same highway between Appleton and Forest Junction. While no definite announcement has been made, it is expected that the paving of these projects will not be done until next season.

RESEARCH REVEALS ALL-BRAN RICH IN HEALTH-ELEMENTS

Helps Correct Constipation
with "Bulk" and Vitamin B;
Also Has Iron

Recent scientific research shows that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains two things needed to overcome temporary and recurring constipation. It has "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract.

These two important food-elements promote regular habits, and help do away with the headaches, loss of appetite and energy, so often the result of constipation.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is mild in action—much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, softer, more palatable.

Isn't this pleasant "cereal way" far more healthful than using pills and drugs—so often habit-forming?

Just eat two tablespoonsful of Kellogg's daily—enough for most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Besides, ALL-BRAN brings your body twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

Equally tasty as a cereal with milk or cream, or used in cooking. Recipe on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

More Hopeful on German Recovery

American and Europeans
Convinced Outlook
Has Improved

BY FRANK H. MCCONNELL

(Associated Press Financial Writer)
New York —(P)— American and European banks which still have about $1,200,000,000 of short term credits tied up in Germany are beginning to feel more cheerful over the prospects of Germany's eventual economic recovery.

While they realize that Germany still has many difficulties to overcome, notably the mechanical difficulties of transmitting foreign exchange from that country to creditor nations, they express the belief that Germany's financial outlook has been considerably improved, partly as a result of the recent Lausanne agreement on reparations.

Indications of their more hopeful attitude have been furnished, bankers state, in the recent willingness of Germany's creditors to shift a portion of their short term advances into longer term obligations. In other words, American and European banks which made cash advances to German banks are availing themselves in somewhat greater measure than before of the German bankers' proposal that they convert such advances into 10-year

6 per cent notes, which in turn are guaranteed by the German banks. In addition, the standstill agreement of 1932, which expires next February, permits creditors to shift their advances into long-term investment in German bank stocks.

No authoritative estimate is yet available as to what portion of the $1,200,000,000 of German short term credits has been shifted into longer term German investments, but it is stated that a moderate amount has been converted.

What is accepted as another evidence of more hopeful feeling, was furnished today in the announcement of Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the standstill committee, that the regular meeting of this committee scheduled for Oct. 1 has been adjourned indefinitely. This is the first time that Germany's bank creditors have been able to table the subject of German debt for even a short period.

NO WONDER!
Strange noises issued from the bath-room.

"What's wrong, Henry?" asked the puzzled wife.

"My razor," came the voice from within the bath-room, "it doesn't cut at all."

"Don't be silly, Henry," she snapped. "Your beard can't be tougher than the linoleum!" — Answers.

Leader of Auxiliary Is Honored

MRS. ANNA JESSMIR, Los Angeles, Calif., national president of United Spanish War Veterans Auxiliary, a former resident of Appleton, was honored at a party given by the local auxiliary Monday night at the armory to which comrades were invited. # Rains Help Smother Large Swamp Fires

Special to Post-Crescent

New London—Fire which for several weeks has been a continual menace to farms in the vicinity of a large swamp in Liberty township was almost extinguished by rains which fell here Monday. Surface fires were wiped out by the intermittent showers, but since swamp fires burn for long periods in the peat bog, it is believed that continued dry weather might cause future outbreaks. Close watch will be kept of the entire area by farmers.

Favors Purchase Of New Fire Truck

Recommendation to be Submitted at Next Council Meeting

(Special to Post-Crescent)
New London—The city fire department at the next council meeting will recommend the purchase of a new fire truck, according to Chief C. J. Dean, who with others of the department visited the Minneapolis firm which is seeking to make the sale. Chief Dean pointed out that the possession of better equipment would reduce the present rate of insurance to the city. Another truck would place the city in Class 6, one step down from its present classification. This would reduce the insurance of the city approximately $3,000, he added. The Minneapolis firm is offering to buy three chemical tanks belonging to the department, two having been in use on the small truck and one on the large truck, for $100 each. This would bring the cost of the new equipment to $3200. The department has in reserve $1,200 which could be used as the initial payment, leaving a balance of $4,000 to be paid over a period of three years. Purchase of the new truck would give to the city the advantage of added protection in the possession of a 750 gallon pump to be used in conjunction with the one the city now has, the chief pointed out. The company would add gratis a pump which would be used on the small truck. This could be kept in readiness for fighting country fires.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

Behind The Door of Delusion

What is it like to be a patient in an insane asylum? Are such places as brutally and callously operated as we sometimes hear? Or are they, on the other hand, run as scientifically and efficiently as the present knowledge of mental diseases permits? These are questions most of us have idly pondered over, at one time or another and now an anonymous author, who signs himself "Immate, Ward 8," undertakes to answer them in "Behind the Door of Delusion."

This is rather a remarkable book. Its author is an inmate of a state asylum, sent there by his own act in a last effort to rid his brain of a seemingly unconquerable craving for alcohol. He tells here just what his life in the asylum has been like. First of all, he explodes the legends about brutality. Asylums, he reports, are conducted as humanely as is possible and the inmates are, on the whole, treated very decently. However, he protests bitterly against the way in which patients are slightly deranged are forced to associate with those who are under maniacs. With grim humor, he tells how the inmates have a saying that a year in an asylum will make any patient crazy. And asylum inmates, he says, urgently needing rest and peace, is automatically put under a terrific nervous strain. You'll find this book on asylum life rather interesting. Published by the Macmillan Co.

Hilbert Defeats Chilton, 12 to 9

Third Game of Series Next Sunday to Decide Championship

(Special to Post-Crescent)
Hilbert—The largest crowd of spectators to witness a baseball game on the local diamond was seen on Sunday, when the local club and Chilton clashed to determine whether a third or play-off game is necessary. The problem was solved when Hilbert walked to victory with a 12 to 9 score. The previous Sunday they played Chilton on their diamond in the first county series game and defeated the locals. Sunday's game being a defeat for the visitors. Both games were umpired by Murphy and Dumpe, who will again have charge of next Sunday's game at the Hilbert ball park. Hilbert scored four runs in the second inning and two in the third. In the eighth Kroehnke allowed six runs. Chilton got a lone run in the first when Adomite tripled and scored on Buhl's single. They scored another in the fifth and five in the seventh. In the eighth inning they managed to add two more runs which looked very promising for them but the luck turned. Baer pitching for the locals allowed Chilton a scant seven hits but poor support had him baffled on the latter part of the game. Following is the summary of Sunday's game. Two base hits—Altman 2, three base hits—L. Suttner, A. Suttner, Adomite. Struck out—Hilbert 1, Chilton 3. Struck out by Kroehnke 4, Baer 8. Base on balls—off Baer 3, Kroehnke 6. Mrs. Albert Hildebrandt returned to her home at Menasha on Monday morning after spending the week end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Vollmer. Mrs. John Schreiner of St. John is confined to her bed for a few days due to heart trouble. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Baldock, Mr. and Mrs. Anton Seichter daughter Marcella, and Hazel Holtz on Sunday attended the Hill County League Rural Letter Carriers association annual picnic at Horn's park at Brillion. The picnic was largely attended and a fine program given. Chester Tranger of Sheboygan Falls extended an invitation to the association and ladies auxiliary to hold their picnic at Sheboygan Falls next year. Mrs. Peter Mahlkoff recently entertained at cards, her guests were Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Schultz and daughter, Elizabeth Braffmeier, Sherwood, Mr. and Mrs. Emily Schilling of High Cliff, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Phillips of this place.

Utility President Defends Lease of Plant at Hearing

Reduction of Payment Would be Violation of Pledge, S. B. Way Says

Madison—S. B. Way, president of the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light company, resumed the witness stand before the State Public Service commission today for a defense of the lease and agreement by which the Milwaukee power plant of the Wisconsin Electric Power company.

In a notice for an investigation of the rates of the Milwaukee company the commission expressed the opinion that a rental of 8 per cent which is being paid for the Lakeside plant is too high and that it could be cut to 6 per cent and the saving passed on to patrons.

Mr. Way took the stand at a hearing late yesterday after James D. Shaw, attorney for the electric company, had presented arguments, contending that the lease and agreement originally was approved by the commission and securities were sold on that basis.

The company maintains that a reduction in the rental would amount to a repudiation of contract and would ruin the electric company's credit because the securities were sold on the pledge of the lease acquired by the Milwaukee company.

The commission contends that the accounts of the Wisconsin Electric Power company indicate that it has made much more than a substantial profit on the Lakeside plant.

In his initial testimony yesterday Way traced the history of the Lakeside plant, which he said has come to be recognized as one of the most efficient plants in the world.

With the metropolitan area facing a shortage of electric power the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light company, then mortgaged to the extent of 61 per cent of its value and earning a low rate of return, was unable to finance a new plant, he said.

A new corporation was formed to build a plant that was much needed and which could issue a first mortgage, he said.

Money for this enterprise could be obtained, Way testified, only upon the pledge that the rental paid by the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light company would be sufficient to meet the interest and the necessary margin on the bonds that had to be issued.

"The securities were sold on the pledge of the lease acquired by the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light company and the rental agreed upon and approved by the state railroad commission assured investors payment of interest on bonds and dividends on preferred and common stock," the president said.

Attorney Shaw told the commission that he would challenge the commission's jurisdiction in the case of the Wisconsin Electric Power company because it is not an

Chief in Court At Clintonville

Faces Charge That He Illegally Transported Paupers There

Neenah—Chief of Police C. H. Watts appeared in justice court at Clintonville Monday afternoon, charged with illegally transporting a pauper family from Neenah to Clintonville, and a date for a preliminary examination will be set later. The case is not within the jurisdiction of a justice court and if sufficient evidence is found to warrant action at the preliminary hearing, the chief probably will be bound over to circuit court, local officials stated today.

Chief Watts was accompanied to Clintonville by John O'Leary, Neenah city attorney, and by H. S. Zernlock, city clerk. A court order for the removal of the family from Neenah to Clintonville was secured by Neenah authorities from County Judge D. E. McDonald recently, and Chief Watts was directed to serve the order and cause the removal of the family there. The action was opposed by Clintonville authorities, although Neenah officials claim that the family belongs, legally, in Clintonville and had not established legal residence in Neenah.

Nothing Venture

by Patricia Wentworth

SYNOPSIS: At the last moment Rosamund Carew Jervis Wear to cheat him of a fortune and secure it for herself. The will of Ambrose Wear, Jervis's grandfather, provides that unless Jervis marries within three months and a day of the older man's death his fiancée, Rosamund, shall replace his grandson as heir. Nan Forsyth is secretly in love with Jervis. She is distressed by Rosamund's threat to his future, and by the plight of her sister Cynthia, bitter because poverty prevents her marriage. Jervis is in a desperate situation.

Chapter 4.

NAN HAS A MAD IDEA

NAN heard Jervis strike the table.

"My position—oh yes, she knows it, and I know it, and you know it. If I'm not married by the fifteenth—that's what Rosamund's reckoning on. I told you I'd let you know why I'd come in a minute. I've come to find out how I can do her in. She thinks she's got me, but there's nothing in my grandfather's will about marrying her. I've got to get married by the fifteenth—but I've not got to marry Rosamund Carew. Find me any girl who'll marry me at twenty-four hours' notice!"

"Mr. Jervis—Mr. Jervis! A moment, please. You have three days—your grandfather's will specifies three months and a day as the period. We have always spoken of the period as three months, and possibly Miss Carew—" He broke off with a cough. "No, no one should impute such motives—not without absolute proof."

Jervis Wear had stopped pacing the room.

"I've three clear days! Good! You have only to find me a wife."

Mr. Page had got his professional voice back.

"Mr. Jervis, you must give me time for consideration. There are other courses open to you. In the circumstances, I have no doubt that the courts would extend the time. There is also breach of promise."

"And make myself the laughing stock of the whole country? I'd rather let her get away with it, and I'll see her in the before I do that." His fist struck the table again.

"Mr. Jervis! She's made a fool of me, and I'll make a fool of her. Who'll be the fool when she picks up The Times on the seventeenth, and sees that I'm married—on the 15th instant, at St. Bartholomew's, Park Avenue, Mr. Jervis Wear to Miss Blank Dash." And that, you see is where you come in. You've got to fill in the blank and the dash.

At this point Nan became aware of the slow, heavy beating of her heart. It seemed to be knocking against her side. There came a drumming in her ears, so that she could not listen and she must, must listen. She heard Mr. Page protest. And then, so loud that it came through the loud beating of her heart, Jervis Wear's voice: "If you won't help me, I'll help myself, if I have to pick her up off the streets!"

With those words in her ears, moving almost as if hypnotized by the idea that was forming within her sadly disturbed mind, Nan took up her hat and left the office without a word to anyone. She closed a door behind her and crossed the street. She felt as if she were being carried by a strong current. And her heart had stopped thumping against her side, which was a great relief.

She walked a little way, and then back. As she turned again, Jervis Wear was striding down the street, and still without any sense of effort, she quickened her pace so as not to be left too far behind. She had no thought that it would be difficult to come to speech with him. She hoped that he was going home to the cool-looking house in East Seventieth street, which was one of the things that would pass from him to Rosamund Carew if he did not marry within the time set by his grandfather's will.

Nan lifted her head. Neither the house nor anything else that was his should pass to Rosamund Carew. The current that was carrying her along was a current of protective love. Ten years ago she had saved him from drowning, and he had never known it. Now she was going to save him again. Rosamund shouldn't rob him; neither should he rob himself.

She dreamed sometimes, even after ten years, of the rocky pool with the salt, cold water coming in on a flood tide. She felt his weight on her straining childish shoulders, and the sea flinging her against jagged rock. Then she would wake and touch the white scar on her arm and go over the whole adventure in her mind. Sometimes she wondered whether she would ever come across the little man who had come to their rescue—Ferdinand Francis. Such an extraordinary fellow.

Jervis Wear walked straight on, giving her enough to do to keep up with him. Nan became more and more certain that he was going home. She came up and him just as he was crossing into Seventieth street.

The sun struck hot on the dark rusty green of a little tree. The street was empty. She spoke his name as her foot touched the curb: "Jervis Wear!"

He flung round, and she saw his face cut with deep lines of pain and rage, his black brows meeting over hot dark eyes.

"What is it?"

The hot dark eyes held not the slightest recognition.

She said, "Mr. Jervis—I'm from Mr. Page's office. That was quite an easy thing to say. But could she, dare she go on?"

(Copyright, 1932, Lippincott.)

Jervis hears an outstanding proposal, tomorrow.

MILWAUKEE—How newspapers cooperate with funeral directors to protect the public against burial rackets and incompetent burial societies will be told at the fifty-first annual convention of the National Funeral Directors' association at Milwaukee, Sept. 28 to 30, by R. P. Lee of Minneapolis. Lee is a member of the board of governors of the association.

At least 2,500 funeral directors are expected to attend the convention at the municipal Auditorium, and they will hear, in conjunction with the discussion of "burial rackets," a report by National Chairman Fred B. Handel of the committee on legislation which will tell how victories over burial associations were accomplished in many states.

George E. Johnson of Appleton, second vice president of the Wisconsin Funeral Directors' association is a member of the reception committee for the banquet, at which all past presidents of the association will be guests of honor.

LIFE'S ODDITIES

New York Yanks Can Clinch Pennant With Single Victory

Dodgers Hurt Cub Chances With 4-3 Win

Sethback Reduces Bruin Lead Over Pittsburgh To Five Games

BY GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer
The opposition willing today to admit that the end of the long, dusty trail Manager Joe McCarthy and his Yankees have trod on the way to pennantville.

A victory over the Cleveland Indians today and the Yanks are "in." Or, failing that, the Ruppert Rifics can lose and still sew up the American league flag, providing the Athletics and Senators also are taken for a couple of falls in the west.

The Yanks assured themselves at least a tie by yesterday's 12-inning triumph over Cleveland, 8 to 3. They scored five times after two were out in the last inning.

Lefty Grove was in fine fettle and the Athletics thumped Detroit, 7 to 1. It was his twenty-third victory.

The Brooklyn Dodgers gave no aid and comfort to the Cubs' cause in the National league when they beat the leaders, 4 to 3. The setback reduced the Cubs' lead to five games over the Pittsburgh Pirates, who were trimming the Phillies, 4 to 2, in the league's only other engagement.

A triple from the bat of Chapman and a home run by Bill Dickey were the deciding blows in the 12 inning Cleveland-Yankee game, Chapman's hit clearing loaded bases and Dickey's round trip blow sending Ben home ahead of him for the five runs that sank the Indians.

If the Yankees do close the books today they will present their manager with a record of his very own. He will become the first man to pilot a pennant winner in each major league. His previous success was with the Cubs, whom he now stands a good chance of meeting in the world series.

The Yankees' pennant may be laid to Johnny Frederick, who retired from strenuous competition this year to sit on the bench and every now and then hit a home run when Manager Max Carey asked him to. It was the last half of the ninth, Glenn Wright was on base, the Cubs were a run ahead, so Frederick smacked one of Burtleigh Grimes' offerings against the right field screen to settle the argument. It was Frederick's sixth home run as a pinch hitter this season, beating the old record by three. Paul Waner's home run in the first inning with his brother Lloyd, on base, helped the Pirates make a clean sweep of their three-game series with the Phillies.

Grand Slam the Series!

THE STORY OF BABE RUTH, RECORD WRECKER

This is the second of ten stories relating the prodigious world's series feats of the one and only Babe Ruth. Nearing the end of his career, the Babe this year will make his tenth and perhaps last appearance in the classic.

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK (AP)—Back in 1914 a long, lean, raw-boned youth of 20 sidled into Fenway park in Boston fresh from spring training, a gangling left-handed pitcher, round faced, wide-nosed, and with ears that stuck out like the handles on a loving cup.

His name was Ruth, he admitted, George Herman Ruth from Baltimore and Jack Dunn's Orioles. A bit earlier Dunn had found him in an industrial school for orphan boys in Baltimore. The priest in charge of the boys' hall team had suggested diffidently that this youngster, already nicknamed "Babe," was good enough to be a professional ball player.

Priest Leaned Backward
This priest, it developed almost immediately, had been excessively conservative. The lanky kid had a

Johnny Fischer Paces Amateurs At 5 Farms Meet

Scores 69 to Lead Field by Two Strokes; Quinmet Gets a 78

BY DILLON GRAHAM
Associated Press Sports Writer

ALTIMORE (AP)—The United States amateur golf championship today appeared even more of a youngsters' show than it was a year ago, with eight newcomers, paced by Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati, among the first dozen leaders as the big event moved into the second 18-hole qualifying round.

Fischer, the 20-year-old national intercollegiate champion, was two shots in front with a 69, one under par, as the 154 starters opened their final drive over five farms course for the 32 qualifying positions in Wednesday's match play.

Close behind came Jack Westland of Chicago, runner-up in the 1931 tournament, with a 71, while five players had 72's—Bill Blaney of West Newton, Mass., the veteran George Voigt of New York, D. W. Armstrong of Lancaster, Pa., John Goodman of Omaha and nineteen-year-old Charles Yates of Atascadero, Calif., who had made their first debut in the national were grouped among those with 73's.

With forty-seven players having scores of 78 or better there was the prospect of a two or three way tie for the medal, as was the case last year, and that 152 or 153 might be the border line score for participation in the match play.

Many of the well-advertised stars, including champion Francis Ouimet of Boston, who had 78; half of the American and virtually all of the British Walker cup members as well as four of the seven former champions entered, were in precarious positions.

A seven on the second hole, after he had driven out of bounds, as well as a double bogey on the ninth, put Ouimet in a precarious position. He placed the 1914 and 1931 titleholder far back and it appeared he would need a near-par score today to stay in the fight.

The failure of the British stars about exploded the foreign threat, although Cyril Tolley of England was up close with a 74 and Ross Somerville, the Canadian star, had 78. John DeForest, the British champion, was back with 78, while Tony Torrance had 80.

Signs Contract

BILL TERRY

New York (AP)—Bill Terry is going to get a chance to see what he can do with a team of his own making.

The Memphis slugger, who succeeded John McGraw as manager of the New York Giants in June, has signed a two-year contract, covering the 1933 and 1934 seasons. Terms, it was said, were "satisfactory" both to Terry and President Charles Stoneham.

The baseball world will watch with more than a little interest Terry's efforts to reorganize a club that was in seventh place today afternoon.

That the big first baseman is dissatisfied with the makeup of the team is well known. He has indicated that only three or four players can be regarded as certain of their places.

The Giants were in last place with 17 victories and 23 defeats, an average of .425, when McGraw quit. Under Terry's handling there has been only a slight improvement—47 victories and 52 defeats, an average of .475. They were in last place when McGraw quit and had small hopes of rising any higher than sixth, if that, before the season ends.

A. A. Star Gets 64th Double to Set New Record

Bill Knickerbocker, Toledo, Is Property of Cleveland Club

CHICAGO (AP)—Bill Knickerbocker, Toledo's slugging shortstop, has set up a new record of 64 two base hits for future American association stars to shoot at.

Knickerbocker, who is the property of the Cleveland Indians, got his sixty-fourth double in the first game of yesterday's double-header with Louisville, and the blow helped the Mud Hens to a 4 to 1 decision over the Colonels. Louisville made only one hit, a freakish home run by Jose Olivares, in the third inning, to spoil a possible no-hit performance by Belye Bean.

The squelching in the first game failed to daunt the Colonels and in the second battle, raked Leo Moon for 14 hits and a 5 to 3 victory. Johnny Marcum held the Mud Hens to seven hits, and contributed three singles to the Louisville attack.

A triple by Ruble with the bases loaded came just in time to give Minneapolis a 4 to 2 victory over Kansas City. Right after Ruble's long swat in the fifth, rain fell and the game was called. The victory went to Rube Benton and was his eighteenth of the season.

Milwaukee took the edge in its series with St. Paul by a 6 to 3 victory in eight innings, rain causing the game to be called. Ted Gullie's home run with two on in the sixth was the margin of victory. The Brewers, by winning, kept pace in the battle for third place.

Indianapolis remained a few points ahead of Milwaukee by overcoming Columbus, 4 to 1, in a night game. Paul Dean pitched well for the Red Birds, allowing eight hits, but the Indians bunched them in two innings for victory. Columbus used several recruits in the game.

Chaff 'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

ASSUMING there will be no apathy on the part of the New York and Chicago baseball public in connection with the world's series, the "gate" figures to pass the million-dollar mark this year if the hostilities last only for five games or, if they are prolonged, to touch a new record high mark of close to $1,500,000.

The Yankees stadium, with its capacity new increased to just a few seats short of 70,000, and Wrigley Field, which will have its limits extended for the accommodation of about $2,000 cash customers, offer two of the biggest battlegrounds in the major leagues. Only the Polo Grounds can accommodate more than the home park of the Chicago Cubs in the National league.

"We are superstitious enough not to order the erection of additional bleachers at Wrigley Field until we have the pennant clinched," President Bill Veeck said recently after he had discussed world's series details with Commissioner Landis in New York. "However, since the series opens in New York, we will have enough time to rush the additions as soon as we are 'in'."

A full house at the Yankee Stadium means about $234,000 in the coffers, so that, if the limit of four games is played there, it requires no lightning calculator to discover that capacity crowds will mean an aggregate of more than $900,000. Three additional games at Wrigley Field, where capacity means slightly over $200,000 per day, would add $600,000 more to the war-chests in needy times.

Seventh Game Problem
Of course the magnates may be a trifle optimistic in figuring the customers will mob the ball grounds at the same old pre-depression prices, ranging from $1.10 for bleacher seats to $5.50 for reserved seats and $6.60 for box seats.

The seventh game of the 1931 series at St. Louis was a "bust" financially, due mainly to the system of not selling tickets for the seventh game until after the sixth is finished.

World's series tickets are sold in three game "trips" by each club, refunds to be made in the event the series does not go that far.

The managers fear that if they also included seventh-game tickets in their pre-series sales, the public would become unduly suspicious of their expectations.

However, since the preference, in event of a seventh game, is given to the previous ticket-holders, anyway, it would seem the more business-like method to cover the whole situation at once, save the fans a lot of unnecessary inconvenience and assure a better "house" for the seventh contest. The refunding system could operate just as efficiently, whether one, two or three unplayed games were involved.

Yank Reserves Strong
Colonel Jacob Ruppert, in very good humor these days as he contemplates his seventh pennant winner, attributes the victory of the Yankees to the way the club's reserve strength has plugged various and sundry gaps through the season.

Noting that Sammy Byrd struck off five hits the day he stepped in to fill the place of the ailing Babe Ruth, the Colonel remarked: "It's an old baseball adage that no club is any stronger than its reserves and the Yankees have proved it again by the way they came through this year. The boys have all been pulling together nicely under Joe McCarthy."

National Leaguers
Hold Dinner Meeting
National league softballers will gather tonight at Armory G where they will honor the league champions, Atlas Mill, will dine and talk over happenings of the last few weeks' play. The dinner scheduled to begin at 6:30 and about 80 persons are expected.

The Atlas team will be presented with miniature golf softballs and the league pennant and sportsmanship banner, if the latter two articles are on hand. The team was voted the sportsmanship banner by the umpire staff.

Philadelphia—Benny Bass, Philadelphia, outpunted Tony Falco, Philadelphia, (10); Eddie Cool, Tacoma, Pa., outpunted Joey Costa, New York, (8).

New York.—A violent selling movement reached its climax by midday in today's stock market, and prices recovered swiftly in the afternoon trading, although extreme losses of 2 to more than 10 points were not fully recovered. The list slipped back a little in the late dealings, and several issues finished with net losses of 1 or more than 3 points. The final tone was heavy. The turnover was well over 5,000,000 shares, making it the second busiest day of the year.

Sharp recoveries in a number of the popular trading issues suggested heavy short covering in the afternoon. Financial markets generally stiffened after a morning slump, including bonds, and principal commodities. The early slump in shares was even more drastic than yesterday's. Trading was active throughout the day, but slackened somewhat in the afternoon.

Union Pacific and Santa Fe, after 6-point drops, finished less than 2 lower. Consolidated Gas and North American recovered only about half of 5 to 6 point losses. Auburn made an extreme loss of 13, and recovered about half. U. S. Steel, after losing more than 4, recovered only about a point. Case dropped 6, and snapped back about 4. Bethlehem dropped 4, and came back 3. Radio Corp. dropped 3, and recovered a 3-point. American Telephone recovered all but about a point of a 4-point drop.

Curb Slumps and Then Stages Rally

Drops When Numerous Speculative Commitments Are Liquidated

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

New York.—The curb market experienced its severest slump of the year, but then recovered its losses in a lively rally.

Speculative commitments which had been made on the long side were liquidated in substantial block at the opening and through the first hour or so. Yesterday's decline had caught a large volume of stop loss orders. The market also experienced a considerable short selling, the combination being sufficient to effect extreme losses ranging up to nearly 10 points in some favorites of the recent advance.

Electric Bond and Share was hammered down to a quotation under 28 for an extreme loss of about 9 points, although it cut that break sharply when the market hardened around noon. Other issues which had reputedly been under pool sponsorship made wide breaks. Trading was most active in the utility division where American Superpower, United Light "A" and American Gas and Electric had maximum recessions of more than a point.

In specialties, Great Atlantic and Pacific and Aluminum of America were off 3 to 4 points at the worst. Stutz Motor and Deere, which had been strongly supported, sagged more than 2.

Oils were less noticeably affected, although lower prices ruled in that division. At least two companies announced cuts of 15 cents a barrel in crude prices.

Shippers Buy Sparingly but Fail to Oppose 5-10 Cent Increase

Chicago.—(U.S.A.)—Better action characterized the market at the opening today on a supply of 16,000 hogs, 3,000 below the advance estimate, which included only 2,000 forward to packers. The state contingency of 5,000 made up largely of packing sows met with a decided increase in demand and first transactions included many light packers at 5-10c higher figures. Shippers bought sparingly during the opening rounds, but they did not offer much opposition to the 5-10c higher prices asked by sellers for light hogs. Butchers and lights were bought at fully steady prices, best ones going at $4.55@6.55.

Fresh cattle receipts carried 50 cars of western range cattle, about half of them in good killing flesh. Native offerings included a limited number of choice steers, weighty kinds commanding best prices. Calves were offered in sufficient numbers to meet trade needs and prices were held steady.

Local packers received 3,800 lambs on direct consignment, but they were interested in the big strings of well-fattened westerns on sale in the open market. Aggressive receipts in the leading markets were 50 per cent lighter than a year ago and stronger prices were quoted for choice lambs.

Road District To Report on Park Project

Considers Improvement of Old Interurban
Right-of-way

Kaukauna—The north road district committee is expected to present a report at the next meeting of the common council on the proposed improvement of the old interurban right-of-way adjacent to the city tourist park. Mrs. J. Merritt Black, owner of the property surrounding the tourist park, has asked the city to accept the right-of-way as a road.

If the city would accept the road, it has been pointed out that a desirable residential district would be opened up. George Black, who represented the Black property interests when the right-of-way was offered for road purposes, told the city council at its last meeting that the right-of-way had been improved with a little more improvement could be used as a road. At the present time there are several property owners along the river bank using the right-of-way as an entrance to their property.

Alderman Walter Cooper, chairman of the north road district committee, opposed the acceptance of the right-of-way as a road by the city until it had been so improved as to leave but the cost of stone topping for the city to pay. At the present time the committee is investigating the ownership of the right-of-way. It is believed that part of the land for the interurban reverted back to the city. A clause in the contract with the Wisconsin Traction Co. read that the land used would revert back to the property owner. Since that time the city purchased some of the Black property for a tourist park, and this property adjoins the right-of-way.

Kaukauna property owners have been asking for a "restricted residential district," and it is believed that if the Black property along the river is opened up with the right-of-way being accepted as a road, the district will be restricted to a certain valuation. Some valuation will be set on the type of residence that can be erected in the territory so as to prevent the owner of a beautiful residence from losing the beauty of his plot by having some nearby property owner erect a small shack to spoil the landscape.

Fine Yields of Corn On Farms in County

BY W. F. WINSEY
The farmers of Outagamie-co are now cutting marvelously large yields of corn. Some of them are snapping out the largest ears before cutting their corn and afterward filling their silos with from one-third to one-half of the usual acreage required. They intend to husk the snapped out ears to fill cribs. After the silos are filled, the surplus is set up in shocks in the fields and it will be husked soon after curing. This fall, a field or more of shocked corn on each farm will remind old settlers of the days before the silos were built when farmers knew how to raise big crops of ripe corn, and the value of ear corn as seed for farm animals.

Start Harvesting Cabbage in County

Part of Crop Sold for Kraut Manufacture—
Some Is Fed to Cattle

BY W. F. WINSEY
Early cabbage is moving to some extent in the eastern half of Outagamie-co as well as in the western half. The price is uniform in both sections at $5 per ton for the contract crop and from $2 to $2.50 for the balance. The early crop has been fit for cutting for some time, and a few growers said, Saturday, that they had late cabbage that should be cut.

At Center Valley and Mackville, a total of four cars each have been loaded out and growers were hauling early Saturday forenoon. Shipping began this week.

At Black Creek the two first cars for the season were shipped out this week. Growers were delivering cabbage, however, Saturday forenoon.

The Seymour Canning Co., has taken in 500 tons of cabbage this season. The vats of the company are now filled but proposed canning to be resumed at once will soon empty the vats and make room for more kraut. Saturday, cabbage was being stacked in the yard.

Some growers too distant from a market to haul at the present prices are cutting and feeding their cabbage to their cattle and are well pleased with the feed. The growth of the late crop of

Good Alfalfa Crop On Fulcer's Farm

Hortonville Man Harvested
70 Tons From Two Cuttings Last Year

BY W. F. WINSEY

The alfalfa fields of Merton Fulcer, Hortonville, have been attracting many farmers. Cars have been slowing down all summer on the highway to give the occupants time to enjoy the sight. While appreciating the tribute paid him by passing cars and curious interested farmers, Fulcer is raising alfalfa for practical purposes other than flower gardens and blocking traffic on the streets. He discovered a few years ago that alfalfa is the best kind of feed for farm animals, the most profitable kind of a cash crop, and one of the easiest farm crops to raise after the grower understands the plant and fits his soil to prevent failure.

While Fulcer has only 15 acres of alfalfa on his farm this season, he harvested 70 tons of hay from two cuttings. Of the crop he reserved 50 tons for his own use and sold 20 tons at $14 per ton. Other farmers may be short of hay this coming winter but Fulcer is well provided.

After he had made a study of the subject, he started raising alfalfa four years ago and has not had a failure even from winter killing since.

The only fertilizer he uses on his land is barnyard manure. Even if his stand of alfalfa is good, he gives the field a top dressing after the first cutting is removed, and he cabbage is being retarded by the drought, generally. Fall rains, however, would produce nearly an average yield in a large proportion of the fields.
